6 DEAD, 14 INJURED IN BLAST

POWDER EXPLODES AS U. S. CRUISER TRENTON'S SAILORS LOAD BIG GUN

Four Men Are Killed Outright, Two Others Die in Hospital as Result of Navy's Latest Peace Time Disaster and Two More are Critically Injured.

BODY OF ONE VICTIM, WHO WAS BLOWN OVERBOARD BY EXPLOSION, NOT FOUND

Naval Court of Inquiry is Called to Learn Cause of Accident Which Occurs as Charge for Gun Was Being Hoisted — Vessel's Turret and Deck Battered.

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 21.—Six dead and 14 injured was the casualty list this morning in the navy's latest peace time disaster, the premature explosion of firing powder aboard the U. S. cruiser Trenton.

Four were killed outright, and two of those who were frightfully burned died at the naval hospital soon after being brought in. The dead are:

ENSIGN HENRY CLAY DREXLER, Sussex Beach, Delaware

ROLAND B. HANSON, Soldier, Iowa

BERNARD B. BYAM, Bristol, Conn.

WILLIAM A. WALKER, Mayo, S. C.

GEORGE R. CHOLISTER, Merchantsville, N. J.

BENNETT WILLIAMS, South Easton, Mass.

Two others of the injured are critically burned and seven others injured so badly their condition is described by naval authorities as serious, but no more deaths are anticipated, it was said at the naval hospital.

THREE SPEAKERS

Public Affairs are Discussed at Noon Luncheon.

Show your interest in civic affairs if you desire to help the city, was the advice given members of the Rotary club at the noon-day luncheon, held at the Y. M. C. A., Tuesday, by members of the public affairs committee.

Attorney W. H. Vodrey, chairman of the committee, spoke on the subject, "East Liverpool's Relation to Our County Government." Joseph Betz discussed the topic, "What Can We Do To Help East Liverpool," while T. H. Fisher gave an interesting explanation of the various departments of the municipal government and how the money gathered from taxation is expended, his subject being "The Way This City Spends Its Money."

Fifty members and four guests attended the luncheon. The chorus singing was led by Attorney Blaine H. Cochran.

B. J. Ross, Wellsville, will be chairman and B. I. Root, Medina, honey distributor, will be the speaker at next week's meeting. Root will display a hive of bees in his talk, relating to the honey making industry.

Suggests Manager Plan.

"Take an active part in civic affairs," said Betz. "Whether you have children attending our public schools or not, visit the schools at frequent intervals. The teachers and pupils will welcome you. Visit the city hall frequently and offer suggestions to your employees. Then call at the Central fire station and ascertain whether all's well there. Call on the service director and advise him on street and other improvements."

"By all means help East Liverpool by taking an active part in all movements having for their goal the improving of the city," said Betz.

Cruiser Captain Submits Report To Navy Chief

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Investigation into the explosion aboard the United States cruiser Trenton, which cost the lives of six naval men and the injury to 14 others, has already disclosed the fact there was no powder outside the magazine, except the two charges which were being hoisted into the gun turret for immediate loading and firing, according to a message received by the navy department this morning from Captain Kalbfus, commanding the cruiser.

DAWES VISITS KEYSTONE STATE

Vice-Presidential Candidate on Way to Philadelphia.

BY ALBERT F. BAENZIGER.

ENROUTE THROUGH PENNSYLVANIA WITH GENERAL DAWES.

Oct. 21.—General Charles G. Dawes, Republican vice presidential candidate, will open his second and final campaign of the east with a speech tonight in Philadelphia.

Budget making and the dangers of congressional supervision of the United States Supreme court will be the subject of his remarks.

His program will take him into Maryland, West Virginia and New York state.

Mrs. Dawes is accompanying the general.

George Miller, engineer on the Pennsylvania railroad, was piloting the candidate's special, when it left Chicago, his home, General Dawes said he remembered how Miller established what still stands as a record for great trains when he "hooked up" to 126 miles in 103 minutes between Bridge's Crossing and Fort Wayne, Ind., in 1908.

When Miller left his cab at Fort Wayne, he carried in one hand a dripping oil can and in the other hand a bouquet of flowers given him by Mrs. Dawes.

BOY DIES AS HIS HOME BURNS

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 21.—Kenneth, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Robinson, was burned to death when the home of his parents was destroyed by fire, at Hicum Bottom, early today.

DR. M. F. FORD, LABOR LEADER, TO ACCOMPANY HARRY L. DAVIS

Gubernatorial Nominee Will Speak Here Friday.

G. O. P. RALLY

Plans Completed for Campaign Meeting in Ceramic Theatre.

Republican campaign speakers, headed by Harry L. Davis, Cleveland, gubernatorial nominee, and Dr. Michael F. Ford, labor leader, will invade Columbiana county, Friday, for a series of political rallies in East Liverpool, Salem, Lisbon, Salineville, East Palestine and probably other communities.

A Jefferson county delegation of Republicans will attend the East Liverpool mass meeting, which will be held in the Ceramic theatre at 8 p. m.

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, of Pittsburgh, who was to have accompanied Ex-Governor Harry L. Davis, will be unable to fill his engagement here, the local Republican committee has been notified. Dr. Ford will take his place.

Marching Club Coming.

Other speakers, who will invade the county, are: Percy Tellow, Salem, former director of the department of industrial relations under Governor Davis; Mrs. Ruth Mosher Place, national women's speaker, of Michigan; G. P. Gilmer, Warren, and Congressman Frank Murphy of Steubenville. Tellow, now an official of the United Mine Workers union, probably will be sent to coal mining center at Salineville for a rally, while Congressman Murphy will likely speak at either East Palestine or Wellsville.

Ex-Governor Davis hopes to speak at meetings to be conducted at Salem and also possibly at Lisbon, before coming to this city for the night rally. He will come into Columbiana county from New Philadelphia, Uhrichsville and Denison where he will spend Wednesday, on Saturday, he and Dr. Ford will go to Warren and Youngstown for afternoon and evening rallies.

Word has been received from Steubenville that the Steubenville Marching club, a Republican organization, will come to this city in special cars. The local meeting will take the form of an old time political rally according to local G. O. P. leaders.

Open Air Band Concert.

The Ceramic City band has been engaged for the evening and will present an open air concert in the Diamond, starting at 6 o'clock. The band also will play at the theatre, prior to the meeting. Ex-Governor Davis will cite his accomplishments of his administration from 1920 to 1922, while Dr. Ford will discuss the Republican party and its friendliness to labor.

The East Liverpool Republican Central Committee will meet at Republican headquarters above the Broadway and Washington street traction terminal at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening to make arrangements for the rally. Fifty or more Republican men and women, who will serve as vice-presidents, will be selected to occupy places on the platform with the speakers at the rally.

Five Gamblers Must Attend Biedewolf Meets, Mayor Rules

Attend the Biedewolf revival meetings four nights a week for a period of six weeks, or pay a fine of $15 and costs, was the ultimatum given five men who appeared before Mayor Charles Brown Monday evening on gambling charges.

The quintet, who were arrested in a raid, made by Officers McFarland and Smith in East End early Sunday morning, pleaded guilty. The men, given the privilege of paying the fine or attending the revival services, chose the latter.

They have been assigned a special seat in the "big shed" at the corner of Second and Washington streets and the usher in charge of that section will keep a record of their attendance. In case they violate the terms of the agreement they will be required to pay the fine.

SIN BARNACLES SCORED BY DR. BIEDERWOLF IN COMMANDMENT SERMON

"LITTLE WEIGHING PARTY," HE SAYS

Idol Worshipers, Sabbath Desecrators, Gamblers, Murderers, Thieves, Scandal mongers, Liars, Adulterers, Profiteers and Coveters Hit.

By T. T. JONES.

Utilizing the ten commandments as separate and distinct weights, each placed in the scale opposite that occupied by his hearers in what he affirmed to be "a little weighing party," Dr. W. E. Biedewolf, analyzing in turn the Mt. Sinai injunctions, declared all "to have been weighed in the balances and found wanting" in his second appearance of the union evangelistic campaign at the Second and Washington street tabernacle on Monday night.

Return To Goodness.

Idol worshippers, Sabbath desecrators, gamblers, murderers, thieves, extortioners, scandal mongers, liars, adulterers of act and thought, profiteers, devotees of false gods, coveters and dispensers of inaccurate testimony—these are they, he asserted, who fall to make the delicate but unerring adjustments which record for them a spiritual gravity that will not guarantee salvation. "Take Jesus into the scale with you," he shouted in conclusion, "and these sin barnacles will drop from you. Then peace will come and the balances be made."

Depleting with screen-like accuracy the appointments, indulgences and abandon of Belshazzar's Babylonian hall in which in the height of revelry a hand, minus a body appeared and wrote upon the wall the fateful words, "Mene," "Tekel," "Upharsin," Dr. Biedewolf averred that the same ten admonitions were those violated and lacerated by the ancient seekers of pleasure as now. What befell them will occur to us unless a return to the fundamental of goodness is made.

Delay in Opening Of Wellsville Road Is C. of C. Topic

Delay in the opening of the Wellsville-East Liverpool road, which it is claimed was completed about three weeks ago, was discussed by members of the Roads and Streets committee of the Chamber of Commerce at a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce rooms at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

The special committee named by President Joseph Betz to wage a campaign opposing the ordinance abolishing the post of police captain at the November election, will hold a meeting in the Chamber's rooms Tuesday evening.

SHAVINGS AND SAWDUST FOUND IN DR. BIEDERWOLF'S TABERNACLE

Miss Edwina Wilson, an East End high school girl, has been very acceptably acting as accompanist to the big choir in order to release Miss Wilma Davis for her duties with the young girls and women of the community. Her playing has elicited much favorable comment.

Seats in the center section of the tabernacle that sagged with the weight of hearers on Sunday night were duly bolstered on Monday and were in their intended condition by the evening service.

Already, the big choir is planning a social for one of the opening nights of the campaign. An orchestra, rapidly increasing in numbers, is augmenting the number in the big choir and greatly enhancing the quality and volume of the music.

On each Tuesday night of the campaign Dr. Biedewolf will preach a sermon that will be one

BORAH ON JOB

B. M. Baruch and J. H. Jones Contribute $25,000 Each.

BY H. K. REYNOLDS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—A more complete picture of the year's national political expenditures was unfolded today before Senator Borah's investigating committee.

The searchlight was turned temporarily away from the coffers of the Republican national committee and those of the Progressives, centering no the finances of the Democrats.

Clem L. Shaver, campaign manager for John W. Davis, and James W. Gerard, treasurer of the Democratic national committee, were summoned before the committee to submit reports on their financial affairs.

Large Gifts Listed

Official figures made public by the Democrats in advance of the appearance of Shaver and Gerard indicated that the Democratic campaign fund so far only amounted to about half that collected by the Republicans. A comparison by the Democrats of contributions in excess of $100 showed an aggregate of $116,826, while the Republican fund, according to figures submitted to the Borah committee at Chicago, now totals around a million and a third dollars.

The highest single contribution was $25,000 there being two in this amount. The donors were Bernard M. Baruch, former chairman of the war industries board, and Jesse H. Jones, director of finance for the Democratic national committee, and Band Will Head Mekka Sanatorium Demonstration.

Plans have been completed for the ceremonial, which will be staged here Tuesday night by members of Mekka Sanatorium No. 231, Oriental Order of Humility and Perfection. Visiting members from Pittsburgh, Sharpsburg, Youngstown and Cleveland are expected to attend.

The affair will start with a parade, which will form on West Sixth street in front of the I. O. O. F. Temple, at 7:30 o'clock. The procession will be headed by the Ceramic City band, followed by the uniformed patrol, the Mekka Sanatorium, jazz band, members of the local order and candidates. The visiting lodgemen will bring up the rear of the procession.

The lodgemen will parade west on Sixth street to Jefferson, south of Jefferson to Fifth street, east on Fifth to Broadway, north on Broadway to Sixth street and thence east on Sixth street to the temple.

A banquet will follow the parade. An initiation will be the concluding event of the evening. Any I. O. O. F. member, wishing to become a member of the sanatorium with the class which will be initiated may obtain an application blank from any member of the order Tuesday evening.

Dr. W. E. Biederwolf declared his appreciation on Monday night of the splendid co-operation of the Review-Tribune in the evangelistic campaign and advised his hearers (if they were not now doing so) to send the paper to their friends.

"I want to express my appreciation at this time before the sermon of the splendid and commendable manner in which the Review-Tribune is handling the news of this campaign," he said. "It has been most capably done and I wish to publicly thank the manager, editor and all connected with this enterprising newspaper. "Many are converted by reading the sermons during the campaign who may not attend a meeting. Therefore you can greatly aid by sending the paper to friends elsewhere. That will be one way to create a revival. Besides, you should do it for civic pride and as a mark of courtesy. Skinny Kids Need Cod Liver Oil

Mothers! If your child is puny or thin has no appetite and seems backward and listless, give him McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets for 30 days and note with pleasure how he gains in weight, strength and vigor from day to day.

Sixty tablets, 60 cents at Anderson, Larkins, Carnahan or Mathews Medicine Store or any druggist anywhere and if they don't help, get your money back. They are sugar coated and as easy to take as candy. Ask for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets—the original and genuine.

D. R. Monk, 330 Spring Street, New York, writes: "I feel sure that McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets were instrumental in restoring my boy to his normal state."

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 17 years of study.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. Take one or two nightly and note the pleasing results. Millions of boxes are sold annually at 75c and 30c.

from its all-summer run in Chicago at the La Salle theatre.

"A Trial Honeymoon" is entirely the work of Harold Orin, who is said to surpass even his "Hitchy Koo," and "Listen Lester" in the tuneful numbers tinkling melodies and laughable book he has provided.

An elaborate scenic and electrical production requiring 70 foot baggage cars to transport it from city to city has been provided by Mr. Gaites and a splendid musical comedy cast, including Winona Winter, Alice Hills, Genevieve McCormick, Bernice Spear, Julia Siegel, John Hennings, Arnold Gluck, Joseph McCallum Frank Gardner and many others including a large song and dance chorus of youth, beauty and talent.

According to advance reports, the high cost of silks and satins as well as of everything that enters into the expense of stage production of today, seems not to have worried Gaites in producing "A Trial Honeymoon."

It is said the costumes worn in the musical comedy are the loveliest in design, the richest in fabric and the most tasteful in coloring ever seen in a musical comedy production.

NEW FEDERAL PRISON LIKELY

Booze May Force U. S.
Pen on Northern Border.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y.—Because of the congestion in Northern New York jails and the apparent increase in bootlegging, alienating and other Federal violations, the United States government is considering the erection of a federal prison, barracks, or detention house, along the Canadian border, near Malone, it has become known.

The exact site of the building, it is said, has not yet been decided upon but in all probability will be at a central point along the border.

During the last two years county jails throughout the northern part of this state and Vermont have been constantly filled with Federal prisoners. Statements made by Sheriff George Donahue, of the Franklin county jail at Malone, and S. W. Day, of the Clinton county jail, in Petersburgh, indicate that more than three-fourths of all prisoners in their custody during the past few months have been held on Federal warrants.

The Malone jail is equipped to house twenty-eight prisoners, while the local jail holds thirty-two normally. Reports from Malone showed eighty prisoners, mostly all Federal, were incarcerated there, the men sleeping on mattresses cast upon cement

Egyptian Sheik, Prince, Captures American Actress for Bride

The marriage of Pearl Shepard, New York actress, and Prince Mohammed Ali Ibrahim of Egypt has just become known, a year after it took place. Miss Shepard, whose real name is Ginsberg, has been traveling with the prince for more than a year, but it was not known that they were married. It was necessary for her to embrace the Mohammedan faith to become his bride.

The same condition was found according to well-informed circles, in the Plattsburg jail, individual cots being a thing of the past and as many as five or six men now occupying cells designated for two. The Chinese detention houses have all been transformed into garages, storerooms and other catchalls, for in the last ten years fewer than ten Chinese have been apprehended.

Should the proposed detention house be erected at Rouses Point, one of the busiest ports of entry from Canada, as has been suggested, the appointment of a Federal commissioner to preside over all courts at the border would be necessary, it is said. At present aliens and bootleggers caught by Customs, Immigration and border patrol services are taken before United States Commissioner W. L. Pattison, of Plattsburg; Commissioner M. H. Burne, at Malone, or Commissioner G. A. Chase, at Massena.

This necessitates a great amount of traveling back and forth, officers being required to transport prisoners from twenty to seventy miles before they can be arraigned and locked up to await action of the Federal courts.

There is not a single advertising bill board on the island of Oahu.

the Little Things That Count

At last Dame Fashion has made up her mind as to what we shall wear and here you have the result of months of planning and buying. Trifles are so breathlessly lovely as they are joyous of color—the little important things that make the mode. Gloves of kid or suede in every color and style. Shades of grey and tan in the short mannish gauntlet are popular.

Neckwear in all its crisp simplicity. Linen and lace collar and cuffs in Puritan, V neck and Buster Brown models with gauntlet cuffs.

Veils, large or small, round or square, plain or adorned with scroll figures or the new French dots.

Purses, envelope shape, entirely rule the mode in that direction. Bead bags for the more formal occasions.

Silk, silk fibre and flannel scarfs in brilliant shades, or subdued.

Beads in an endless array of colors, sizes and shapes with earrings and bracelets to match—on and on through the list of trifles that make a costume perfect.

Sweaters of Every Type For Indoors and Out

Perhaps you are one of those persons that crave warmth at all times. Perhaps you only wear a sweater for smartness. In either case you will find the new Autumn models entirely to your liking for both warmth and smartness have been combined.

New sweaters for Fall and Winter are developed of plain and brushed wool. Some are slip-over style—others coat style.

The Bobby coat, Chippie coat and Shaker-knit coat sweaters are among the most popular models.

New shades are Chinese red, Eclair green, Harding blue, Lariat, poudre blue, coral and silver. Plain and combinations.

Also the ever popular tans, greys, navy, and white. Priced from $1.95 to $17.75.

The cost of which becomes almost a negligible quantity when taking into consideration all the comfort and corrective principles they represent.

The vogue for the low top corset brought with it a question that was a real problem to the well-groomed woman—namely—what to do with the ugly, unfashionable "bulge" which invariably appears over a low corset top? Ordinary brassieres do not solve this problem to the satisfaction of every woman. So model Brassieres come forward with a solution that combines comfort and fashion—obtained by means of criss-cross boning, cleverly placed so as to flatten the diaphragm and banish the unsightly "bulge."

LACK OF FUNDS HITS LIBRARY

Officials to Ask Cause of Delay in Transfer of Money.

Contending that action to ask common pleas court to approve the city's plan to aid, financially, the city's Carnegie library should have been completed weeks ago, City Auditor Fred Eckfeld Tuesday asserted he, as well as members of the library board, would attend Tuesday night's council meeting with the expectation of ascertaining the cause of the delay in the fund transfer which Monday compelled custodians of the Carnegie library, Ninth and Main streets, to close the institution's doors.

Auditor Eckfeld pointed out that city council, almost two months ago, approved a resolution presented by City Solicitor George D. Ingram, authorizing the transfer of $1,000 from the city's safety fund to the library fund, which was touching bottom. Members of the library board, at the same time, also pointed out that under the provisions which keeps the library here, the city guarantees to take care of its financial problems.

Before the fund transfer could be completed, however, the resolution should be approved by common pleas court. This action, it is asserted, is all that is being awaited in order to pay the $1,000 over to the library.

According to Mrs. G. L. Howe, of the library board, the institution must stay closed until the city supplies the funds it has promised. It is estimated that approximately 3,000 persons use the library, in addition to school children.

COAL ORDINANCE MAY BE ASKED

The sale of coal here will be regulated by the city, so far as weight is concerned, if city councilmen, at their regular meeting Tuesday evening, approved a proposed ordinance, which, it is reported, will be brought to their attention.

Under the terms of the proposed coal weight bill, dealers would be required to certify to patrons in writing that, for example, a "50 bushel load of coal contains 50 bushels."

The measure, it is explained, does not bear any intimation that short weight has been the rule, but is designed more to standardize weights in a manner similar to the methods used in grocery stores or elsewhere.

County Sealer Barr recently submitted a copy of ordinances effective in Salem and East Palestine, regulating coal sales, to Mayor James S. Barnes, and the latter, in turn, directed the attention of council to it. No action, however, was taken on the suggestion.

Under the terms of the proposed municipal coal ordinance, certain scales in various parts of the city, which would be tested and approved by the proper authorities, would be used by all dealers for weighing their loads.

Announce Marriage.

Announcement has been made here of the marriage of Mrs. Ada Grimes, of Aten avenue, to John Kelley, of Kensington, which was solemnized

Saturday afternoon at the parsonage of the First Presbyterian church in Lisbon. The ceremony was performed by Rev. P. W. Macaulay, pastor. The bride was attired in a taupe grey traveling suit with accessories to match. The couple was unattended. The bride has a large number of friends in this city. Mr. Kelley is a Kensington merchant.

TEN FACE MAYOR OVER WEEK-END

With the arrest of 10 alleged law violators, nine men and a woman, on various charges, within the last three days, local police have been kept busy.

Fines amounting to approximately $540 and possibly more, will be added to the safety department fund as a result of the arrests. This amount, at least, is either paid or pledged.

William Jackson, colored, charged with transporting liquor, was fined $256.60, but went in jail in default of payment.

Charles Thomas, colored, paid a fine of $15.50 on a charge of intoxication.

F. J. Clark, arrested on a charge of intoxication and disorderly conduct, was fined $106.60. He paid $81.56, and, upon his pledge to pay the remainder in the near future, was allowed his freedom in order to obtain the money.

Dan Parsons, who was arrested on a charge of intoxication, had no money with which to pay his fine of $10 and costs, but was released on condition that he leave the city.

Mike Desmond paid a fine of $156.60 on a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

Brought into court on a similar charge, Lino Carbone was assessed a similar fine and made arrangements to pay.

Jim Garlo, also answering to a charge of carrying concealed weapons, paid a like amount.

William Pugh, arrested on a charge of intoxication, paid a fine and costs of $26.60.

Ida Fielder, colored, charged with keeping a disorderly house, is being detained in jail pending disposition of her case.

Thomas Monypenny, charged with intoxication, paid a fine of $20 and costs.

Lewis Funeral Tuesday.

Funeral services for Mrs. W. C. Lewis, of Main street, who died on Saturday evening in the East Liverpool city hospital, will be held on Tuesday afternoon at the late residence, in charge of Rev. Frank H. Magill, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. Burial will be made in Spring Hill cemetery.

RADIO SIGNALS STRONGER WHEN AIR IS CHILLY

Cold Waves Increase Power Twice Normal Strength.

REASONS GIVEN

Government Observations at Two Stations Prove It.

WASHINGTON — Cold waves increase the power of radio signals to more than twice their normal strength, according to studies just completed by the U. S. Bureau of Standards.

Observations were made on daylight signals from the long wave trans-Atlantic stations at New Brunswick, N. J., and Tuckertown, N. Y.

The signal strength was found to be uniform during most of the year, as was to be expected from the moderate distance of transmission, but with the coming of the cold waves of January, 1924, the signals rose to more than twice their normal strength, experts said.

"At the same time there were deviations of many degrees in the apparent directions of the sending stations, as indicated by the radio compass, even in the forenoon, when long wave compass bearings are generally free from error," the Bureau of Standards said.

"The end of the series of cold waves in January did not at once restore transmission conditions to the uniformity of Autumn and early Winter, but left a condition of instability, which persisted through the comparatively mild cold of February and early March.

"During this time the signals frequently fluctuated, going to high values for a few hours and then returning to normal, without any obvious connection with weather conditions. After March 19 these irregularities entirely ceased, and transmission again became normal.

Observations on other long-wave stations indicated that these large variations do not occur at a distance of fifty kilometers, that they are large at 250 to 300 kilometers and are again less at 400 to 700 kilometers.

According to bureau experts, there is at present no definite explanation of this phenomenon. The case is said to be evidently atmospheric, and the connection with the cold wave suggests that either the part of the atmosphere concerned with the signal variations lies much below the Heaviside layer—80 or 100 kilometers—or that weather phenomena are correlated with atmospheric action at much greater heights than has been hitherto supposed.

LACK OF FUNDS HITS LIBRARY

Officials to Ask Cause of Delay in Transfer of Money.

Contending that action to ask common pleas court to approve the city's plan to aid, financially, the city's Carnegie library should have been completed weeks ago, City Auditor Fred Eckfeld Tuesday asserted he, as well as members of the library board, would attend Tuesday night's council meeting with the expectation of ascertaining the cause of the delay in the fund transfer which Monday compelled custodians of the Carnegie library, Ninth and Main streets, to close the institution's doors.

Auditor Eckfeld pointed out that city council, almost two months ago, approved a resolution presented by City Solicitor George D. Ingram, authorizing the transfer of $1,000 from the city's safety fund to the library fund, which was touching bottom. Members of the library board, at the same time, also pointed out that under the provisions which keeps the library here, the city guarantees to take care of its financial problems.

Before the fund transfer could be completed, however, the resolution should be approved by common pleas court. This action, it is asserted, is all that is being awaited in order to pay the $1,000 over to the library. According to Mrs. G. L. Howe, of the library board, the institution must stay closed until the city supplies the funds it has promised. It is estimated that approximately 3,000 persons use the library, in addition to school children.

COAL ORDINANCE MAY BE ASKED

The sale of coal here will be regulated by the city, so far as weight is concerned, if city councilmen, at their regular meeting Tuesday evening, approved a proposed ordinance, which, it is reported, will be brought to their attention.

Under the terms of the proposed coal weight bill, dealers would be required to certify to patrons in writing that, for example, a "50 bushel load of coal contains 50 bushels."

The measure, it is explained, does not bear any intimation that short weight has been the rule, but is designed more to standardize weights in a manner similar to the methods used in grocery stores or elsewhere.

County Sealer Barr recently submitted a copy of ordinances effective in Salem and East Palestine, regulating coal sales, to Mayor James S. Barnes, and the latter, in turn, directed the attention of council to it. No action, however, was taken on the suggestion.

Under the terms of the proposed municipal coal ordinance, certain scales in various parts of the city, which would be tested and approved by the proper authorities, would be used by all dealers for weighing their loads.

EAST LIVERPOOL—AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1924.

Five Ballots for November 4

All of East Liverpool's 7,988 registered electors, who go to the polls on Tuesday, November 4, to exercise their right of suffrage in the selection of a president, state district and county officials, will be handed five ballots. In no sub-division of the county shall less than four ballots be used.

The regular ballots are:

1—Presidential, listing the 24 electors for each of the five parties given places on the ticket—Democratic, Republican, Independent-Progressive, Commonwealth Land and Socialist Labor.

2—The five-column state, district and county ticket, listing all candidates for offices from governor to county coroner.

3—The non-partisan judicial ticket, containing the names of candidates for judges of the supreme, appellate and probate courts, with two candidates for the short term on the supreme court bench made necessary by the death of Judge Wanamaker.

4—Proposed $100,000 bond issue to erect a new county jail at Lisbon.

The fifth ballot, which will be used in East Liverpool, is the referendum on the councilmanic ordinance which abolishes the post of police captain, now held by Mason Conley, one of the oldest members of the police department, in point of service, and a man who is qualified in every respect for the exacting duties required.

On each of the partisan tickets, the Republican candidates appear in the second column.

The Republican candidates on the judicial ticket are: for judge of the supreme court, Reynolds R. Kinkaide and Judge James E. Robinson; for judge of the court of appeals, Judge John Pollock; for probate judge, Lodge Riddle.

No Republican candidate seeks the short term for judge of the supreme court. The two candidates are Harry L. Conn, Democrat, and Nicholas Klein, a Socialist.

To vote a straight Republican ticket, place an X in the second column of the presidential and state, district and county tickets and an X before the names of the Republican candidates on the non-partisan judicial ticket.

Study the ballots before you go to the polls.

Super-Radio

It is natural that in an era of super-everything there should be super-broadcasting by radio. The third annual conference at Washington makes it clear that there are going to be startling developments immediately along this line.

The Radio Corporation of America is now building, just outside of New York city, a station that will have a maximum power of 50 kilowatts. That is 50 times as great as the power now permitted to private broadcasting stations, and 100 times as great as the power used by the average station.

The conference has gone on record as favoring freedom to increase the power used, and the government is not disposed to interfere except for purposes of preventing abuses and adjusting disputes in the radio field. Small stations, using low power for local broadcasting, are to be protected, but there is to be no needless obstacle to the larger development of the art.

The typical station of the future, it appears, will use many times the power now used, and therefore have a far broader range. Moreover, in order to make the powerful stations function most efficiently, and keep them from making themselves a nuisance in their vicinity, they will be located not in cities but outside of cities. Broadcasting studios will probably be located in business centers, as they are now ordinarily, but the programs will be carried by wire to the sending stations out in the country.

This should work very well, but it is largely experimental. Radio innovators have to feel their way, and it is not sure yet whether super-power will be desirable or not. The coming year will tell, and also will determine the future of national broadcasting by means of inter-linked stations.

The hit-and-run motorist and deserves the halt.—Columbus (O.) Dispatch.

TODAY

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.)

GOOD BY ROMANCE

Romance power boats instead of gondolas travel the canals of Venice. Robert Thompson, British air minister, reports sheiks of the desert riding in Ford cars, no more galloping on beautiful Arab horses.

Englishmen are even building gasoline filling stations at intervals on desert routes. The next thing will be porcelain baths for the sheiks and then romance will disappear entirely.

GIRLISH JOY IN LIFE

Dr. Frankel, of Berlin, famous specialist in women's diseases, uses X-rays to restore middle-aged women to the energies and joys of youth. Roentgen rays of low intensity causes women to lose fat and with it "that tired feeling," greatly increasing capacity for work, and restoring girlish joy in life.

The Frankel method, it is said, rejuvenates cells that have grown old and increases activity of the glands.

This is important scientific news, but many old ladies will say:

"Leave me in peace, I am doing nicely. Don't drag me back to the my early troubles."

If it can be shown, as Dr. Frankel hopes, that the use of the low intensity rays prevents the development of cancer that will be more important even than restoring "girlish joy in life."

SHE NEVER WORE THEM

The Countess De Kersin is in a Paris prison for murdering her husband, because she was jealous of another lady. In court the countess turns laughingly to the other woman and says, "I have never worn silk stockings myself." The other woman presumably had them on.

French newspapers tell the economical countess, "if you had worn silk stockings and things that go with them, you might not have lost your husband." "Coquetry," says the Paris Soir, "is the most important duty of women."

Even here, where we shoot each other often and hang each other, rarely, the silk stockings are usually on the other woman.

THE DUKE AND THE JEW

Notice one difference between high bred English lords of proud "Nordic" blood and some Jews.

Two magnificent paintings of Raphael are now in the National gallery, property of the people. One was owned by the Duke of Marlborough. He sold it to his fellow citizens in 1885, for $350,000. The other belonged to Dr. Ludwig Mond. He gave it to the nation for nothing.

The contrast is heightened by the fact that the British nation had given the Marlboroughs their magnificent palace, the restates and a gigantic fortune. Ludwig Mond, the Jew, had to earn what he got.

Judge men by what they do.

United States Steel will build two big mills at Duluth, and that is interesting news for American industry. Really big concerns such as the steel company, largest industrial unit in the world, are able to supply unlimited money and establish plants wherever they can work best. Assuming that the public gets its share of the economy produced the bigger the concern the better.

With Europeans going into business on a national scale, it is necessary for the United States to develop business on as big a basis as possible. A one-horse plant can't compete with the British empire.

G. R. Shaw continues to think in spite of age. Says he:

"Sport is a form of pleasure for the inartistic. Those that lack mental activity must make up for it with bodily activity."

The king must go to races and football games. He shakes hands with football players. The king need not go to picture exhibitions and Shaw says:

It would be a nice days sensation if the king made a practice of shaking hands with artists."

What Shaw says of the king applies partly to the president of the United States. He goes to the baseball game which pleases the crowd, and when it is over arranges a reception at the White House for the players. There is no record of reception for artists at the end of a picture exhibition.

Sport, however, is considerably more than a dull refuge for the "inartistic mind." Our ancestors developed health and strength (climbing up and down trees, dodging in and out of caves, chasing each other, club in hand, through the valleys).

Men have been walking on their hind legs for two hundred thousand years at the most and their insides haven't got quite used to the natural position. We need much exercise to prevent deterioration.

Sports help, but unfortunately, in baseball, there are a thousand hollow chest, spindle legged youths looking on, for one professional exercise.

Sporting exercises taken through the eyes only, help neither body nor mind.

The whole text the league of nations "protocol to end wars" is published. It is an interesting protocol. But there is war in China, war between Spain and Morocco, war at any time between Russia and Rumania or Russia and Poland is probable. It will take more than a protocol to end war.

A cable from Madrid announces the conscription of 55,000 more young Spanish soldiers to be sent fighting in Africa.

Will the protocol do anything for them? Probably not.

WHO'S WHO

COLONEL M. L. WALKER.

As the new governor of the Panama Canal, Colonel M. L. Walker heads one of the few large governmental enterprises that turns into the nation's treasury more revenue than it takes out.

Recent reports show that, aside from its value as a vital factor in national defense and in American commerce, the canal is now a paying business concern. Its success in operation has been a direct result following the selection of its governors from the officers of the corps of engineers.

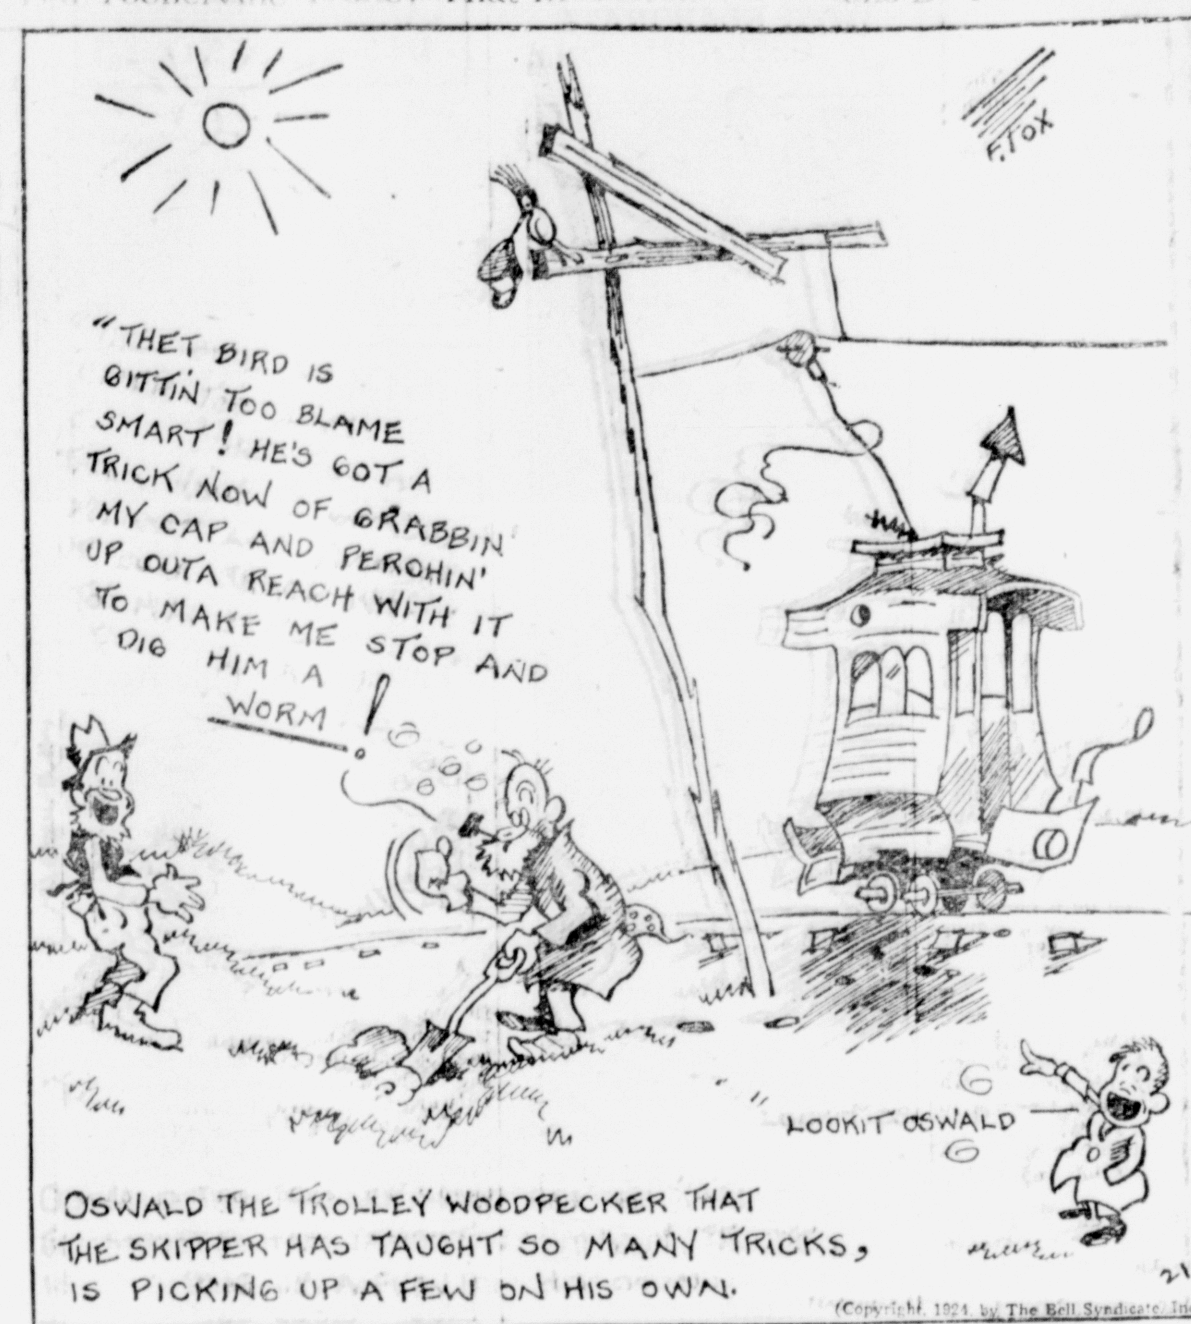

Colonel Walker, the new governor, has been engineer of maintenance of the canal since June, 1921. He has had a long and distinguished service in the corps of engineers, United States army, since his graduation from the military academy in 1893.

In the appointment of Colonel Walker the government continues the practice of placing the administration of the canal in the hands of army engineers trained for the post in long duty as engineers of maintenance under the governor. General Goethals, builder of the canal and its first governor, was succeeded by the man he had trained, General Chester Harding, and the retiring incumbent was long under Governor Harding. He now passes the office on to the engineer who has been closely identified with him in the work, Colonel Walker.

NEWSY GOSSIP OF BIG CITIES

By DAVID M. CHURCH.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—"Open Confession to a Man from a Woman" is the title of Miss Marie Corelli's last book, written just before her death and about to be published.

The title has caused considerable discussion as to whether or not it tells the inner story—the love romance of the famous authoress herself. Many who are acquainted with the history of the rather lonely life of Miss Corelli will be inclined to believe that the novel is at least founded upon personal experiences.

The manuscript "gives a vivid picture of a woman's soul and reveals her most intimate thoughts and emotions. The man who has loved and lost is not spared, and is told that he is a mere shred of a man, out of which my imagination built a divinity."

One striking passage is: "I can only imagine that the strange and sudden 'love' with which you inspired me was the result of my own loneliness in the world, for my own long-stifled longing for some scrap of tenderness. For I have been lonely all my life."

Marie Corelli's history is still a question of dispute, but it seems probable that, whatever her ancestry, she was forced to spend most of her life in loneliness.

Little by little England's old landed gentry are departing from the dignity of the old aristocracy.

Announcement is made that the Hon. David Tennant, son of the late Lord Glenconny and stepson of Viscount Grey, former British ambassador to the United States, is financially interested in a new entertainment club to be opened shortly in Soho, London's Bohemia.

Tennant is expected to take a personal interest in the management of "The Gargoyle," as the new club will be known. It will cater primarily to the theatrical people, writers and artists. The clubhouse will be divided into two large rooms, one of which will be a replica of an old English farm house kitchen, with a great fireplace and big table-boards and large refectory tables. There will be a bar such as is found in old times; beer will be served in mugs, and beer kegs will stand in the bar. Space will be provided for dancing, and there will be a stage for cabaret performances. Hugh Gee, a scenic artist, and Jeavon Brandon-Thomas, son of the noted actor, will also be partners in the venture.

Gee is the brother-in-law of Hermione Baddeley, London's precocious 17-year-old theatrical star. Her name in the last year has scored three tremendous successes, and is the most talked of actress in London today. Having had one success as a character actress in "Come to the Fore," and then "disappeared" in Galsworthy's "The Forsytes" and then "disappeared" in the serious-minded great hit.

Tennant and Miss Baddeley have been constant companions of late, and rumors of an engagement have been heard.

Lord Aberdeen, ex-viceroy of Ireland and ex-governor general of Canada, has jumped into the Irish controversy to refute what he terms an "intolerable calumny" on the part of the Ulster association.

The statement complained of was: "The war showed the north pouring out its blood and treasure in order to insure the triumph of right and justice. It showed the south, during the hour of British extremity, rebelling against British authority in 1916, when the enemy was at the gate, and shooting down her soldiers, who were needed elsewhere to protect the hard-pressed British lines."

In refutation of the above, Lord Aberdeen quoted a statement by General Sir William Hickie on behalf of the Legion of Irish Ex-Servicemen. "I have served," said Hickie, "side by side with the Ulster division in France, and I know that no Ulster soldier would speak so of the south. The statement is so untrue that I find it hard to speak about it without using the language of the barrack room."

"We in the army recognize no two Irelands," continued General Hickie; "but I can say that Ireland, north as well as south, responded most nobly to the call of the empire. With everything going recruiting, including official pin-pricking, they sent out at least 300,000 men. Up to the end of 1920 the numbers of men who returned were: Ulster (six counties), 61,377; Ulster (three counties), 2,659; rest of Ireland, 135,964."

After producing figures which went to show that, in proportion to population, there were far more ex-soldiers in the south than in the north of Ireland, General Hickie pointed out that in his own little village of Portanna, with a population of 650, including the nuns in the convent, 229 men went to the war, and he concluded by saying that "he found it hard to keep his temper after a statement like that referred to."

A famous French scientist declares that fear of death greatly shortens the span of human life.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—There are a dozen street mayors in New York. All save two are Jews. The locality mayor is typical of New York and is emblematic of the soul of the East Side, where the foreign born rather enjoy idolizing a celebrity.

Papa Barker is mayor of Avenue D. Others are Frank Dostal, of Avenue B; Morris Eisenstadt, of First Avenue; Abe Fagin, of Hunt's Point; Joe Levy, of Second Avenue and also the duke of Essex Street; Hughie Masterson, of Eighth Avenue; Stitches McCarthy, of Grand Street; George McKenny, of Harlem; "Kardoon" Phillips, of Delancey Street; Edward Rosenfeld, of Broome, and Uncle Nathan Vlodavsky, of Eldridge Street.

The first locality mayor of New York was Patrick Conolly, of Poverty Hollow. He was so named by Charlie Lynch, one of the bright reporters of Dina's Sun. They were companions in the old Essex market court 30 odd years ago.

The locality mayor is what they call a "fix-it-bird" for their neighborhood. He goes after landlords who do not repair leaky pipes or furnish plenty of steam heat. He helps tenants who are short in their rent and settles neighborhood quarrels.

He lends money without interest and he patches up domestic quarrels. In return he carries the votes of the neighborhood in his "vest pocket." Nobody knows exactly just how he makes his money, but they have their suspicions.

They have plenty of money. The Duke of Essex Street wears $500 diamond in his shirt and gave his daughter a $20,000 necklace as a wedding present. He is said to be worth $500,000 and there is no question about the authority of his Rolls-Royce, Riverside Drive apartment and Jap valet.

The locality mayors battered their way up from obscurity. Most of them were newsboys in the days when to "hold a corner" meant prowess with the fist.

All the world at some time or other drifts through the Waldorf's Peacock Alley. During a hot hour's loaf there I saw Irvin Cobb, Irving Berlin, Lee Shubert, Harry Kemp, George McManus, Charles Dana Gibson, Will Irwin and Frank A. Munsey.

Footlocking has had small effect on Broadway's supper club ambitions. For next month 70 new clubs are scheduled to open. Decorators are all ready at work on them. They are to be sumptuous places and the new plan is to admit only those absolutely known to the head waiter to be "right." New York has been fed up on Russian cellars and Szechuan-Slovak roofs and the new note in decoration is toward simplicity. Several head waiters who went to Europe when their cafes were shot out from under them have been cabled to return and take their stands behind the silken ropes.

Old customs are not easily thrown off. Each morning a man leaves his home and with a jug-shuffles along in slippers to a hydrant near Jefferson Market. He fills the jug with water and returns home. He is a Frenchman who has lived many years in Algeria, where he formed this habit of going to the community well.

There is a prize fight authority in New York who always sickens at the sight of blood. He has attended hundreds of fights, but whenever the "claret" flows he is nauseated.

Haskin Letter

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

LOOKING HEAD FOUR YEARS

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 21.—Political seers who are worthy of the name do not do their "seering" at short range for the reason that probability is more recklessness with the event immediately at hand. Hence, they are already looking beyond the 1924 struggle for the presidency to the possibilities and probabilities of 1928, discussing party alignments and candidates with the confidence born of knowing that their predictions will be forgotten by everybody save themselves before four years have rolled around.

It is a long look ahead, but an interesting one. Many of the outstanding figures in the present campaign necessarily will be eliminated before another quadrennial election is at hand. The mere lapse of time will do this for some of them, and the exigencies of politics will turn the truck for others.

Win or lose in 1924 Calvin Coolidge will not be an active factor in the presidential contest of 1928. If he is elected this November he will not be a candidate to succeed himself, for he will have had practically two full terms in the White House, and it is now fairly well established that the voters of the country will not give any man more than that. If he loses this fight he is no more likely to be considered as his party's standard bearer in the next conflict than was William Howard Taft in 1916 after his defeat in 1912.

Age will not remove President Coolidge from the political arena—he will be but 56 on July 4, 1928—and he and the element that responds to his leadership will undoubtedly have much to say about what is done in the bi-campaign of 1926 as well as in the more important one two years later. Massachusetts will still be very much on the political map even if Coolidge is defeated this year, and decidedly so if he is elected.

It is likewise generally accepted that, win or lose, the Republican nominee for vice president, Charles G. Dawes, will not cut important ice, as the slangsters say, in 1928, unless there is a new party alignment with all the forces of rockribbed conservatism rounded up in one group.

THE DAVIS HOROSCOPE

The stars say that John W. Davis, the Democratic candidate, had better win in 1924 if he wants to be a factor in 1928. Should he be elected it is an odd one but that he will be re-nominated; should he be defeated it is not likely that he will be any stronger in his party than James M. Cox was after his disaster in 1920. His running mate, Charles W. Bryan, if elected, will probably meet much the same political fate that was meted out to Thomas R. Marshall as a result of being immured in the vice presidency, and if defeated he may seek his future in the new party of liberals, or radicals, if there be one.

William Gibbs McAdoo may be said to have been counted out in Madison Square Garden where many another good fighter in another kind of sport has hit the canvas for the long sleep. After his defeat in his bitter fight for this year's nomination it is not to be expected that he can stage a come-back, and it is believed that the fight that eliminated him did the same thing for Governor Al Smith. The latter, however, should be re-elected governor of New York, and at the same time John W. Davis should fail to make the presidential grade, would have to be accorded a look-in in 1928, for he would have shown a degree of popular strength that his party could not ignore.

Robert Marion La Follette is not reckoned with as a possible candidate by the wise-acs in connection with 1928, save in the remote contingency of this election this year. He is now in his seventh year, and if he survives the terrific strain of the present campaign and is living four years hence it is improbable that any party, his own included, would nominate him for president again.

However, what the Wisconsin senator has already done toward organizing a political movement that may become a new permanent party, and what he may do after this year's election, unquestionably make him an important factor four years hence. Indeed, that his influence will be felt for many years to come is conceded by those who regard it as a baleful influence, while it is the boast of those who believe in him and his theories of politics and government.

Wheeler, the other independent leader, is looked upon as an uncertain factor, so far as the future is concerned, much depending upon whether he hops back into the Democratic fold, or whether he sticks to the new party and the new party survives. It is recognized, though, that Wheeler has youth, and that he is full of vim, vigor and vitality, things that are singularly lacking in many statesmen of the old school.

WHAT MAY HAPPEN IN NEW YORK

The result of the election in the state of New York this year may have a peculiarly interesting bearing upon the politics of 1928. As has been said, Governor Al Smith, should he be re-elected, inevitably will figure in national politics for many years to come, for he will not reach his fifty-first milestone until the next to the last day of this year, and if he can demonstrate his continued dominance of the empire state he must necessarily be a live wire in the big game, no matter if he is a wet, a Tammany member, a Catholic and an outspoken opponent of the Ku Klux Klan.

On the other hand, should young Theodore Roosevelt be elected governor of New York this year, that will be something else again. Much has been said and written about how the "Teddy" of today is following in the footsteps of his famous father. He has served in the New York legislature, made an enviable war record, and been assistant secretary of the navy, and now he is the Republican nominee for the highest office within the gift of the people of his state, and all of that does parallel his father's career.

However, it should be pointed out that in some respects he has already outstripped his father. He made his war record at the age of 31, whereas his father was 39 before he led the charge up San Juan Hill; was the second man in the navy department at 34, while his father was 38 when he sat at the same desk, and he has been nominated for governor at 37, while his father was almost 40 when he took the same mark.

It is true that the younger Roosevelt has not been a member of the civil service commission, nor a candidate for mayor of New York City, nor yet a police commissioner of that city, and it is also true that the Democrats in his state are saying that as a gubernatorial candidate he is nothing but a name. However, should he get away with the gubernatorial honors it is not a little stretch of the imagination to say that he is a certain factor in the presidential equation of 1928, and that he may make the White House in one less than two jumps, which was the record his father established. He may not have to pause in the vice-presidency enroute.

EAST LIVERPOOL—AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1924.

Five Ballots for November 4

All of East Liverpool's 7,988 registered electors, who go to the polls on Tuesday, November 4, to exercise their right of suffrage in the selection of a president, state district and county officials, will be handed five ballots. In no sub-division of the county shall less than four ballots be used.

The regular ballots are:

1—Presidential, listing the 24 electors for each of the five parties given places on the ticket—Democratic, Republican, Independent-Progressive, Commonwealth Land and Socialist Labor.

2—The five-column state, district and county ticket, listing all candidates for offices from governor to county coroner.

3—The non-partisan judicial ticket, containing the names of candidates for judges of the supreme, appellate and probate courts, with two candidates for the short term on the supreme court bench made necessary by the death of Judge Wanamaker.

4—Proposed $100,000 bond issue to erect a new county jail at Lisbon.

The fifth ballot, which will be used in East Liverpool, is the referendum on the councilmanic ordinance which abolishes the post of police captain, now held by Mason Conley, one of the oldest members of the police department, in point of service, and a man who is qualified in every respect for the exacting duties required.

On each of the partisan tickets, the Republican candidates appear in the second column.

The Republican candidates on the judicial ticket are: for judge of the supreme court, Reynolds R. Kinkaide and Judge James E. Robinson; for judge of the court of appeals, Judge John Pollock; for probate judge, Lodge Riddle.

No Republican candidate seeks the short term for judge of the supreme court. The two candidates are Harry L. Conn, Democrat, and Nicholas Klein, a Socialist.

To vote a straight Republican ticket, place an X in the second column of the presidential and state, district and county tickets and an X before the names of the Republican candidates on the non-partisan judicial ticket.

Study the ballots before you go to the polls.

Super-Radio

It is natural that in an era of super-everything there should be super-broadcasting by radio. The third annual conference at Washington makes it clear that there are going to be startling developments immediately along this line.

The Radio Corporation of America is now building, just outside of New York city, a station that will have a maximum power of 50 kilowatts. That is 50 times as great as the power now permitted to private broadcasting stations, and 100 times as great as the power used by the average station.

The conference has gone on record as favoring freedom to increase the power used, and the government is not disposed to interfere except for purposes of preventing abuses and adjusting disputes in the radio field. Small stations, using low power for local broadcasting, are to be protected, but there is to be no needless obstacle to the larger development of the art.

The typical station of the future, it appears, will use many times the power now used, and therefore have a far broader range. Moreover, in order to make the powerful stations function most efficiently, and keep them from making themselves a nuisance in their vicinity, they will be located not in cities but outside of cities. Broadcasting studios will probably be located in business centers, as they are now ordinarily, but the programs will be carried by wire to the sending stations out in the country.

This should work very well, but it is largely experimental. Radio innovators have to feel their way, and it is not sure yet whether super-power will be desirable or not. The coming year will tell, and also will determine the future of national broadcasting by means of inter-linked stations.

The hit-and-run motorist band deserves the bait.—Columbus (O.) Dispatch.

TODAY

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.

GOOD BY ROMANCE

Romance power boats instead of gondolas travel the canals of Venice. Robert Thompson, British air minister, reports sheiks of the desert riding in Ford cars, no more galloping on beautiful Arab mares.

Englishmen are even building gasoline filling stations at intervals on desert routes. The next thing will be porcelain baths for the sheiks and then romance will disappear entirely.

GIRLISH JOY IN LIFE

Dr. Frankel, of Berlin, famous specialist in women's diseases, uses X-rays to restore middle-aged women to the energies and joys of youth. Roentgen rays of low intensity causes women to lose fat and with it "that tired feeling," greatly increasing capacity for work, and restoring girlish joy in life.

The Frankel method, it is said, rejuvenates cells that have grown old and increases activity of the glands.

This is important scientific news, but many old ladies will say:

"Leave me in peace, I am doing nicely. Don't drag me back to the my early troubles."

If it can be shown, as Dr. Frankel hopes, that the use of the low intensity rays prevents the development of cancer that will be more important even than restoring "girlish joy in life."

SHE NEVER WORE THEM

The Countess De Kermion is in a Paris prison for murdering her husband, because she was jealous of another lady. In court the countess turns laughingly to the other woman and says, "I have never worn silk stockings myself." The other woman presumably had them on.

French newspapers tell the economical countess, "If you had worn silk stockings and things that go with them, you might not have lost your husband." "Coquetry," says the Paris Soir, "is the most important duty of women."

Even here, where we shoot each other often and hang each other, rarely, the silk stockings are usually on the other woman.

THE DUKE AND THE JEW

Notice one difference between high bred English lords of proud "Nordic" blood and some Jews.

Two magnificent paintings of Raphael are now in the National gallery, property of the people. One was owned by the Duke of Marlborough. He sold it to his fellow citizens in 1885, for $350,000. The other belonged to Dr. Ludwig Mond. He gave it to the nation for nothing.

The contrast is heightened by the fact that the British nation had given the Marlboroughs their magnificent palace, their estates and a gigantic fortune. Ludwig Mond, the Jew, had to earn what he got.

Judge men by what they do.

United States Steel will build two big mills at Duluth, and that is interesting news for American industry. Really big concerns such as the steel company, largest industrial unit in the world, are able to supply unlimited money and establish plants wherever they can work best. Assuming that the public gets its share of the economy produced the bigger the concern the better.

With Europeans going into business on a national scale, it is necessary for the United States to develop business on as big a basis as possible. A one-horse plant can't compete with the British empire.

O. B. Shaw continues to think in spite of age. Says he:

"Sport is a form of pleasure for the inartistic. Those that lack mental activity must make up for it with bodily activity."

The king must go to races and football games. He shakes hands with football players. The king need not go to picture exhibitions and Shaw says:

It would be a nine days sensation if the king made a practice of shaking hands with artists."

What Shaw says of the king applies partly to the president of the United States. He goes to the baseball game which pleases the crowd, and when it is over arranges a reception at the White House for the players. There is no record of reception for artists at the end of a picture exhibition.

Sport, however, is considerably more than a dull refuge for the "inartistic mind." Our ancestors developed keen and strength climbing up and down trees, dodging in and out of caves, chasing each other, club in hand, through the valleys.

Men have been walking on their hind legs for two hundred thousand years at the most and their insides haven't got quite used to the natural position. We need much exercise to prevent deterioration.

Sports help, but unfortunately, in baseball, there are a thousand hollow chest, spindly legged youths looking on, for one professional exercise.

Sporting exercises taken through the eyes only, help neither body nor mind.

The whole text of the league of nations' "protocol to end war," is published. It is an interesting protocol. But there is war in China, war between Spain and Morocco, war at any time between Russia and Rumania or Russia and Poland is probable. It will take more than a protocol to end war.

A cable from Madrid announces the conscription of 85,000 more young Spanish soldiers to be sent fighting in Africa.

Will the protocol do anything for them? Probably not.

The locality mayor is what they call a "fix-it-bird" for their neighborhood. He goes after landlords who do not repair leaky pipes or furnish plenty of steam heat. He helps tenants who are short in their rent and settles neighborhood quarrels.

He lends money without interest and he patches up domestic quarrels. In return he carries the votes of the neighborhood in his vest pocket. Nobody knows exactly just how he makes his money, but they have their suspicions.

They have plenty of money. The Duke of Essex street wears $500 diamond in his shirt and gave his daughter a $20,000 necklace as a wedding present. He is said to be worth $500,000 and there is no question about the authority of his Rolls-Royce, Riverside Drive apartment and Jap valet.

The locality mayors battered their way up from obscurity. Most of them were newsmen in the days when to "hold a corner" meant prowess with the fist.

All the world at some time or other drifts through the Waldorf's Peacock Alley. During a half hour's loaf there I saw Irvin Cobb, Irving Berlin, Lee Shubert, Harry Kemp, George McManus, Charles Dana Gibson, Will Irwin and Frank A. Munsey.

Padlocking has had small effect on Broadway's supper club ambitions. For next month 30 new clubs are scheduled to open. Decorators are all ready at work on them. They are to be sumptuous places and the new plan is to admit only those absolutely known to the head waiter to be "right." New York has been fed up on Russian cellars and Czech-Slovak roofs and the new note in decoration is toward simplicity. Several head waiters who went to Europe when their cafes were shot out from under them have been called to return and take their stands behind the silver ropes.

Old customs are not easily thrown off. Each morning a man leaves his home next door to a jug shop, goes to a shipper to a hydrant near Jefferson market. He fills the jug with water and returns home. He is a Frenchman who has lived many years in Algiers, where he formed this habit of going to the community well.

There is a prize fight authority in New York who always sickens at the sight of blood. He has attended hundreds of fights, but whenever the "claret" flows he is nauseated. Copyrighted, 1924, by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

WHAT YOU READ LONG TIME AGO

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

October 21, 1899.

Among the Pittsburgh visitors today were Joseph Smith and family, Mrs. McDonald, Zach Evans, J. J. Purinton, Gus Bendheim, Fred Lawrence, George Thayer, W. B. Swank, S. H. Porter, F. C. Polts and daughter, and Clement McQuillen.

This morning Charles H. Henneman, John Brennan and Howard Burton left for Beaver, where they will be employed by the Ohio Valley Gas company on their new pipeline.

The quarantine was lifted from the home of Fred Turnbull this morning.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

J. J. Purinton was yesterday elected to succeed himself as president of the Building and Loan Association of Ohio.

Miss Amanda Peterson and George H. Garney, both of this city, were married Thursday evening at 8 o'clock by Rev. J. P. Dimit.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hamilton, of Hollow Rock, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Thursday.

Haskin Letter

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

LOOKING HEAD FOUR YEARS

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 21.—Political set-a who are worthy of the name do not do their "looking" at short range for the reason that probability is mere recklessness with the event immediately at hand. Hence, they are already looking beyond this 1924 struggle for the presidency to the possibilities and probabilities of 1928, discussing party alignments and candidates with the confidence born of knowing that their predictions will be forgotten by everybody save themselves before four years have rolled around.

It is a long look ahead, but an interesting one. Many of the outstanding figures in the present campaign necessarily will be eliminated before another quadrennial election is at hand. The mere lapse of time will do this for some of them, and the exigencies of politics will turn the truck for others.

Win or lose in 1924 Calvin Coolidge will not be an active factor in the presidential contest of 1928. If he is elected this November he will not be a candidate to succeed himself for he will have had practically two full terms in the White House, and it is now fairly well established that the voters of this country will not give any man more than that. If he loses this fight he is no more likely to be considered as his party's standard bearer in the next conflict than was William Howard Taft in 1916 after his defeat in 1912.

Age will not remove President Coolidge from the political arena—he will be 56 on July 4, 1925—and he and the element that responds to his leadership will undoubtedly have much to say about what is done in the campaign of 1928 as well as in the more important one two years later. Massachusetts will still be very much on the political map as Coolidge is defeated this year, and decidedly so if he is elected.

It is likewise generally accepted that, win or lose, the Republican nominee for vice president, Charles G. Dawes, will not cut important ice, as the slanders say, in 1928, unless there is a new party alignment with all the forces of rock-ribbed conservatism rounded up in one group.

THE DAVIS HOROSCOPE

The stars say that John W. Davis, the Democratic candidate, had better win in 1924 if he wants to be a factor in 1928. Should he be elected it is an odds-on bet that he will be re-nominated; should he be defeated it is not likely that he will be any stronger in his party than James M. Cox was after his disaster in 1920. His running mate, Charles W. Bryan, if elected, will probably meet much the same political fate that was meted out to Thomas R. Marshall as a result of his defeat in the presidential election of 1920, and if defeated he may seek his future in the new party of liberals, or radicals, if there be one.

William Gibbs McAdoo may be said to have been counted out in Madison Square Garden when many another good fighter in another kind of sport has hit the canvas for the long sleep. After his defeat in his bitter fight for this year's nomination it is not to be expected that he can stage a comeback, and it is believed that the fight that eliminated him did the same thing for Governor Al Smith. The latter, however, should be re-elected governor of New York, and at the same time John W. Davis would fail to make the presidential grade, would have to be accorded a look-in in 1928, for he would have shown a degree of popular strength that his party could not ignore.

Robert Marion La Follette is not reckoned with as a possible candidate by the wise-acs in connection with 1928, save in the remote contingency of his election this year. He is now in his seventies, a year, and if he survives the terrific strain of a present campaign and is living four years hence, it is improbable that any party, his own included, would nominate him for president again. However, what the Wisconsin senator has already done toward organizing a political movement that may become a new permanent party, and what he may do after this year's election, unquestionably make him an important factor four years hence. Indeed, that his influence will be felt for many years to come is conceded by those who regard it as a baleful influence, while it is the boast of those who believe in him and his theories of politics and government.

Wheeler, the other independent leader, is looked upon as an uncertain factor, so far as the future is concerned, much depending upon whether he hops back into the Democratic fold, or whether he sticks to the new party and the new party survives. It is recognized, though, that Wheeler has youth, and that he is full of "steam, vigor and vitality," things that are singularly lacking in many statesmen of the old school.

WHAT MAY HAPPEN IN NEW YORK

The result of the election in the state of New York this year may have a peculiarly interesting bearing upon the politics of 1928. As has been said, Governor Al Smith, should he be re-elected, inevitably will figure in national politics for many years to come, for he will not reach his fifty-first milestone until the next to the last day of this year, and if he can demonstrate his continued dominance of the empire state he must necessarily be a live wire in the big game, no matter if he is a wet, a Tammany product, a Catholic and an outspoken opponent of the Ku Klux Klan.

On the other hand, should Young Theodore Roosevelt be elected governor in 1924, much that will be something else again. Much has been said and written about how the "Teddy" of today is following in the footsteps of his famous father. He has served in the New York legislature, made an enviable war record, and been assistant secretary of the navy, and now he is the Republican nominee for the highest office within the gift of the people of his state, and all of that does parallel his father's career.

However, it should be pointed out that in some respects he has already outstripped his father. He made his war record at the age of 31, whereas his father was 39 before he led the charge up San Juan Hill; he was the second man in the navy department at 34, while his father was 38 when he set at the same desk, and he has been nominated for governor at 37, while his father was almost 49 when he took the same mark.

It is true that the younger Roosevelt has not been a member of the civil service commission, nor a candidate for mayor of New York City, nor yet a police commissioner of that city, and it is also true that the Democrats in his state are saying that as a gubernatorial candidate he is nothing but a name. However, should he get away with the gubernatorial honors it is not a wild stretch of the imagination to say that he is a main factor in the presidential equation of 1928, and that he may make the White House in one less than two years, which was the record his father established. He may not have to pause in the vice-presidency enroute.

CARNOL, A Preparation to Increase Your Weight

Often in a Short Time

A New York concern is preparing in tablet form, easy to take, a combination of flesh-building ingredients, to which the attention of those who wish to put on a little weight is called. This tissue and flesh building preparation is sold under the name of CARNOL. There is nothing mysterious about CARNOL. Most of us know that the formation of fat and tissue in the human body depends upon our own powers of assimilation and that people who assimilate their food as a rule healthy, well-developed and strong. If everyone were able to properly assimilate the food they put in their stomachs, there would not be so many thin men and women. CARNOL, one tablet with each meal, fortifies the natural elements and serves as an assimilative agent, a sort of missing link between eating and growing flesh. Thin men and women who take CARNOL with every meal soon begin to notice its beneficial results and quite often gain from two to three pounds per week. All those who wish to put on flesh, make their figure a little more attractive and at the same time improve their digestion and general state of health, should give CARNOL a trial. For sale by Jesse D. Holloway and all good druggists. Mail orders filled. Price $1.00. The Carnol Co., 32 Union Square, New York, N. Y. adv.

CARNOL, A Preparation to Increase Your Weight

Often In a Short Time

A New York concern is preparing in tablet form, easy to take, a combination of food-building ingredients, to which the attention of those who wish to put on a little weight is called. This tissue and flesh building preparation is sold under the name of CARNOL. There is nothing mysterious about CARNOL. Most of us know that the formation of fat and tissue in the human body depends upon our own powers of assimilation and that people who assimilate their food are as a rule healthy, well-developed and strong. If everyone were able to properly assimilate the food they put in their stomachs, there would not be so many thin men and women. CARNOL, one tablet with each meal, fortifies the natural elements and serves as an assimilative agent, a sort of missing link between eating and growing flesh. Thin men and women who take CARNOL, with every meal soon begin to notice its beneficial results and quite often gain from two to three pounds per week. At the same time improve their digestion and general state of health, should give CARNOL a trial. For sale by Jesse D. Holloway and all good druggists. Mail orders filled. Price $1.00. ... of three children tells experience with "Mother's Friend."

"I USED 'Mother's Friend' before my last baby came," writes Mrs. McCormick, Liberty St., Pontiac, Mich., "and brought him with very little discomfort. I am the mother of three children but I never had such an easy time with the other two. I recommend 'Mother's Friend' to all expectant mothers."

"Mother's Friend" is applied externally. It relieves that tight feeling; permits easier natural radiation of muscles and nerves during expectancy and at child-birth.

"SILENT VOTE" IS FACTOR IN OHIO BATTLE

Donahey Fails to Defend Record as Davis Campaigns.

EYES ON RACES

Crabbe-Morrow Fight Second to Governorship Contest.

BY WILLIAM J. HUSKE.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 21.—With Governor A. Victor Donahey, Democratic nominee to succeed himself in the state executive chair, sticking assiduously to his task, and declining by the silent treatment all invitations from his Republican opponent, former Gov. Harry L. Davis, to take the stump and defend his record, the Ohio campaign entered today upon its last two weeks, with political forecasters frankly at sea as to the probable outcome. Their inability to forecast the vote was laid to the "silent vote," and the apparent unwillingness of the voters to campaign battle cry.

Democrats hoped to inject "ginger" into their campaign with the appearance of John W. Davis, the presidential nominee. However, Mr. Davis was to make a number of rear platform addresses on his way across the state to Cleveland, where he makes his second set address of the year to an Ohio audience at public hall that night.

Bid for Independent Vote. Particularly strong bids for the vote of the independent element were to be made in the days yet to come. Political leaders declared it would decide who should occupy places of power and patronage in the State House for the next two years, and it was conceded that this strength was largely centered in the industrial counties of Cuyahoga, Hamilton, Franklin, Lucas, Mahoning, Trumbull, Stark, Summit, Clark and Montgomery.

Even in the landslide of 1920, when the Harding majorities reached new proportions, rural Ohio voted much as it had done in other years, and political leaders here asserted there was no apparent evidence of a political overturn in these sections. The American issues of the war have largely left the Ohio farmers untouched. It was said. More diversified farming, better markets and superior means of transportation were claimed. It was declared. In the greater prosperity of the Ohio farmers as compared with his brethren farther west.

Outside of the governorship, interest in the Ohio State ticket centered largely in the fight being made by Attorney General C. C. Crabbe to succeed himself. Crabbe, author of the present day reform movement, has drawn the fire of the Anti-Saloon League, formerly a strong supporter, and while Col. Thomas H. Morrow, of Cincinnati, his Democratic opponent, has not been openly endorsed, recent official utterances of the official organ of the league indicated a "friendly neutrality" at least so far as he is concerned.

Radium Is Restoring Health to Thousands

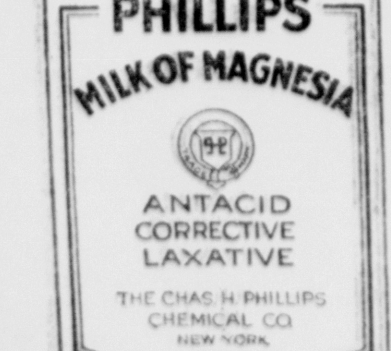

The wonderful curative power of Radium has been known for years. However, the benefits of this precious health-giving substance have in the past been only within the means of persons of wealth.

Since the invention of Dr. J. C. Phillips' Radium Active Solar Pad, any man or woman, poor or rich, can afford this treatment which affords so much relief from suffering and disease.

Dr. J. C. Phillips' Radium Active Solar Pad is worn next to the body day and night. It pours a constant stream of radioactive energy into the system while you work, play or sleep, helping to build up weakened nerves and tissues to a strong, healthy condition. It creates a vigorous circulation of blood, thus removing impurities, which is the real cause of most diseases.

To prove just what this remarkable treatment can do for you, we will send you an appliance on trial with the understanding that we will not charge you a cent if it fails to give satisfactory results. This offer is open to any person who has pain of any kind, nerve weakness, high blood pressure, stomach, kidney or liver complaint, bladder trouble, or disease of the lungs or heart.

No matter what your ailment or how long you have had it, we will gladly let you try the appliance at our risk. Write today for free literature giving complete information. Radium Appliance Co., 1104 Broadway Bldg., Los Angeles, Calif.

TABERNACLE VISITORS, HERE'S SONG THAT WILL BE USED BY BIG CHOIR

Out of the Pit.

J. F. Fitch.

He took me out of the pit, And from the mir-y clay, He set my feet on a rock, Es-tab-lishing my way; He put a song in my mouth, Our God to mag-ni-fy, And He'll take me some day To His home on high.

God to mag-ni-fy, And He'll take me some day To His home on high.

"He Took Me From the Miry Pit" one of William E. McEwan's own songs that is not in the song book used at the revival and which he brought with him from Scotland, will be used by the big choir following its publication in the Review-Tribune.

STRAIGHT-FROM-SHOULDER BLOWS BY EVANGELIST W. E. BIEDERWOLF

Lots of boys and girls are playing checkers on their noses behind prison bars because they failed to honor their fathers and mothers.

Husbands do not need an ax to kill their wives. They can do so more slowly, perhaps, but as surely, with their infidelity and the perimortus word.

Some people walk about as if they were looking for a vacancy in the trinity.

The Kaiser said he got his commission from the Lord. Well the Lord gives and the Lord takes away. In that event "Blessed be the name of the Lord."

The women who lives only for dress, society and high balls are more vicious than the denizens of the red light district.

When the slightest provocation comes to some men all they can do is "cuss."

Some men, resenting the application of the word that casts an aspersion upon your mother, are pretty low down when you think more of her than of God.

When God gave man six days in which to labor and have pleasure I hate to see him "hen" the seventh to gratify his greed.

Nine-tenths of those who defy

Sin Barnacles

ance the scales of equity and justice the evangelist, despite the drop in temperature, was perspiring freely at the half way mark in his sermon. He spared none, not even himself, in the need to meet up with the conditions required. The heinousness and sor didness of the pictured irregularities appeared, developing a gloom that was lighted only by a flareback to the Bethlehem Star which centuries ago began its constantly increasing illumination.

With seeming strategic maneuver the speaker, sensing the state of mind of those before him, hurled into the arena the Scottish tenor, W. E. McEwan, and asked him, "Are You?" which first he heard him sing in Boston 10 years ago when his musical director made his initial arrival in America. The reaction was apparent, deep conviction being patent throughout the vast auditorium.

Everyone Has a God. "Everyone has a God," declared Dr. Biederwolf. "If it is not the true one then it may be yourself, society, appetite or lust. You are commanded to have no other God but me. When you do you are weighed and found wanting."

"Nor must you worship any graven image. No person, prophet, person or image can be substituted. You must come by the living way—that of Jesus Christ."

"You can not swear and cuss and expect to make the tabernacles. Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain."

"And that a travesty on the Fourth Commandment are our Sundays becoming. Foreigners coming here to live, are attempting to force upon us a Continental Sunday. If they do not like our laws and customs they should be made to return whence they came."

"We should honor our parents. Some of you young girls and boys think you know more than your father and mother. When you become parents yourself you will realize how much they have done for you and what caused the premature graying of their hair and the hallowness of their cheeks."

"There are other ways to kill than by shooting. Your carelessness, indifference and sin will wreck the lives of those about you just as effectively."

Denounces Divorce. "And the adulterers are not only those who commit the overt act but they who in their thoughts are equally guilty and often more viciously guilty. There is no greater pervert than he or she, who for the smile of a denizen of the lower world or that of a married man or woman, will be to be with them, procure a divorce for the frequent alleged cause of incompatibility of temperament. Our divorces are now 1 to 4.5 or 6.1 can't recall which."

To steal is not always to rob a safe or a bank but to take more than is due without proper recompense or service.

The Eighteenth Amendment came from the other side of the Atlantic. And now they are wanting to put the Bible out of the public schools.

There should be an 'Eleventh Commandment.' Thou shalt not commit infidelity.

In proportion to their marriages America has passed half-civilized Japan in divorces. The situation is a blow to the throne of God.

The newsboy, shooting crap on the street, is regarded as a thief and sent to jail, while the broker, dabbling in farmers' commodities in Wall street and losing them their right returns for their labor, is held a market plunger and speculator and elected to the legislature.

One does not have to rob a bank to steal and lie. The salesman, alleging an article imported when knowing it to be made in New Jersey, asserting cloth to be all wool when it is half cotton, declaring purity when adulteration abounds, does both.

Great statesmen aver that America's greatness has been due to its observance of the Sabbath day. Shall we permit aliens to make of it a continental Sunday?

"The salesman or merchant misrepresenting commodities violates the injunction 'not to lie' as much as he who deliberately falsifies. Oh, how we need a return in all lines to old fashioned honesty."

"God pity those of us, who are covetous, as we stand in the judgment. 'And the false tongues. How numerous they are!'"

"Get into the scales and see how much you weigh. Will you be able to balance?"

Hymns by Big Choir. Again as on Sunday night the big choir, augmented by violin, flute and cornet in the orchestral section, boomed out hymn after hymn that held the audience.

"How do you like it?" interrogated Director McEwan of the audience after many of the renditions. And the applause that followed always reiterated the appreciation.

As per promise Messrs. McEwan and Heaton sang together "So Precious is Jesus." Sustained applause followed.

"Do you want to hear more?" inquired Mr. McEwan.

"Yes," "Yes."

"Then come back tomorrow night," he retorted.

Conferences Follow Services. The invocation was made by Dr. Donald McLeod, pastor of the First Presbyterian church.

Following the services Dr. Biederwolf conferred with the ministers in the southwest section of the tabernacle. Mr. Heaton had a session with the women personal workers in the north west section and Director McEwan instilled his choral members with the virtue of the word "loyalty" which will be their slogan during the campaign.

Beginning on Wednesday and continuing Thursday and Friday, Miss Wilma Davis will, in lieu of the afternoon sermon, deliver a bible talk at the tabernacle at 2:30 o'clock. Next week Dr. Biederwolf will preach at this hour and Miss Davis will follow at the end of each service.

The text of Dr. Biederwolf's sermon on Monday evening is printed on page 10.

Signs on the big tabernacle furnaces aver: "This furnace is assisting in making it hot for the devil."

Wellsville has sent in a request for reservations at periods during the campaign. This will be done.

Health Chieftain Denies Report of Scarlet Fever Cases

Dr. John A. Fraser, city health commissioner, Tuesday, denied the report given out from Lisbon, Monday to the effect that "scarlet fever is prevalent in East Liverpool."

"Since October 1, there has been but five mild cases of scarlet fever reported from various parts of the city," declared Dr. Fraser. "The number of cases here is really less than normal for this time of the year. We also had five cases of diphtheria since then, but neither is anything like an epidemic and both diseases are under control of local health officials. No new cases of either disease have been reported within the last week."

The report emanating from Lisbon charged that the local health department had failed to make reports of the number of cases of contagious and communicable disease existing here. Dr. Fraser declared that the state board of health is kept in touch with such diseases as they occur. The county health authorities have no jurisdiction over health conditions within the municipality, this work being handled by the local health board.

ranee a few weeks ago, brought back the body of vice consul Robert W. Imrie, slain by a mob of religious fanatics in Teheran, Persia. She was to have been dispatched from the scouting fleet and sent to Bridgeport, Conn., to participate in the Navy Day celebration there next Monday.

The Trenton, her forward turret and deck battered and blackened, is lying at the Hapton Roads naval base, pending the inquiry to be announced later.

She is a vessel of 7,500 tons, carries 10 six-inch guns and a crew of approximately 400. Her commander is Captain E. C. Kallbus. She is a unit of the scouting fleet under command of Rear Admiral Newton A. Mottley, which has been engaged in target practice off the Virginia Capes for the past six weeks. She left Norfolk, October 13, to take her station on the southern drill grounds.

provement of the city's conditions and induce others to join with you in such activities. In your own business you do not permit your employees to run things to suit themselves without your directing guidance."

Let's urged that the position of city treasurer be abolished and that the treasurer's duties be handled by the city auditor and also urged the adoption of the manager form of government.

What City Spends. Fisher pointed out that the city government, school board and township trustees spend approximately $782,000 annually, of which amount $102,000 represents interest on public debt.

"A city is only a place inhabited by an organized community," he said. "We therefore have officials whose duty it is to keep our accounts for us, and make required reports, and it is especially to these reports that I call your attention."

"With $782,000 being spent in our community each year for the safety, health and education of our people, we have a city of which we can justly be proud; and, as we stand in the valley gazing admiringly over the hills on which this city is built, we may say of East Liverpool, 'How beautiful doth Zion stand a city built compact and fair.'"

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Railroad and specialty stocks continued their forward movement in the early trading in the stock market today, but fresh weakness developed in the independent steel stocks, with Bethlehem the most reactionary in this group.

Bethlehem was compelled to absorb heavy selling in the first hour, and declined from above 41 to 39, the lowest recorded price since 1920, and only fractionally below the record price since the stock was split up in 1917, after climbing to $700 a share.

The bearish traders renewed the attacks on the industrial leaders, selling American Can down to 128, General Electric at 24 1/2 and Baldwin at 15 1/2. Oil stocks, which have been the leaders in the recent advance, were also offered at fractionally lower prices. Some of the sugar company stocks declined on heavy offerings, American sugar losing nearly two points and Punta Allegre one point.

The low priced rails were the first to attract attention by their steady upward movements. St. Louis and San Francisco recorded a new 1924 high at 35 1/2. Wabash common and preferred, the St. Pauls, New Haven, Texas Pacific and Katy stocks featured an active market at prices at or near the highest point of the present movement.

TOLEDO, Oct. 21.—Hogs—Receipts light; market lower; good mediums, $10.85 to $11.00; heavy Yorkers and light Yorkers, $10.75 to $10.80; good mixed or bulk of sales, $10.75; roughs, $9.50 to $9.60; stags, $9.50.

Cattle—Market steady. Veal calves—Market steady. Sheep and lambs—Market steady.

Cleveland Live Stock. CLEVELAND, Oct. 21.—Cattle—Receipts 200 head; market steady. Calves—Receipts 300 head; top, $12.00; market steady.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts 2,000 head; top, $14.00; market 25 to 40c higher.

Hogs—Receipts 2,000 head; market 15 to 25c lower; Yorkers and mixed, $10.60; heavy, $10.50; medium, $10.75 to $10.85; pigs, $8.50; roughs, $9.00; stags, $6.50.

In the $5,000 class were also Samuel Untermyer, one of the nation's next representing Senator La Follette before the Senate committee; Frank L. Polk, John D. Ryan, Percy S. Straus and Cleveland Dodge.

Mrs. Wilson Contributes. Governor Charles W. Bryan, the Democratic vice presidential candidate, gave $500, while contributions of $100 each came from Mrs. Edith Holling Wilson, widow of the late president, and former Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels.

The Democratic budget, according to these preliminary figures, contemplates a total expenditure of $1,900,000, of which slightly more than half has been collected.

Nominee at Wooster. WOOSTER, Oct. 21.—With only two weeks left for active campaigning, former Gov. Harry L. Davis, Republican gubernatorial nominee, arrived here today to address Wayne county voters, before going on to Canton where he is booked for a meeting tonight.

Mr. Davis, upon his arrival here, expressed satisfaction with the course of his campaign, declaring that he had received many promises of support from unexpected quarters, and has found "widespread dissatisfaction with the present administration of state affairs."

Shenandoah at San Diego. SAN DIEGO, Cal., Oct. 21.—Navy headquarters at North Island here reported that the Shenandoah had arrived safely and shortly after 5 o'clock was cruising around waiting to tie up to her mooring.

C. A. McGeehan Opens Meat Market-Grocery In Sixth St. Room

C. A. McGeehan who, for several years has conducted a meat market in the City Market house, has opened a meat market and grocery business in the former stand of the American Cash Grocery, East Sixth street, near Broadway. The new business will be known as the McGeehan Cash Market. Mr. McGeehan had disposed of his stand in the market house to Aba Holinsky, who will open a fish market in the location.

DAVIS SWINGS INTO KENTUCKY

Democratic Nominee Pledges "Safe and Sane" Program.

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.

BOARD DAVIS SPECIAL EN ROUTE TO LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 21.—Pledging the Democratic party to a "safe and sane" program toward American business, John W. Davis drove his presidential campaign into the political arena of Kentucky today.

As his train sped across the Tennessee line, Davis left behind him a definite promise to business interests that his administration of the nation's affairs would be based on a policy of "sane, sound, progressive liberalism."

His party's program, he said, carried on "threat or menace whatsoever" for business prosperity.

The candidate faced a series of rear end speeches in the blue grass country today and a night address in Louisville, confident that he would win Tennessee in November by a landslide victory. His brief dash into the "solid south," he was told by state leaders, insured him an overwhelming vote there.

Hull's Mysterious Trip. There was but one unusual incident on his southern trip—the unexplained action of Davis in sending Cordell Hull, former national chairman and a Tennessee congressman, on a hurried and mysterious trip to Washington.

The departure of Hull led to speculation of a possible shakeup in the management of the Democratic national campaign.

Lions Club Members To Entertain Wives At Dinner Meeting

The Lion Club members will entertain their wives at the regular meeting to be held Monday, November 3, according to arrangements made at the dinner meeting in the banquet hall of the Y. M. C. A., Monday evening. Place for the meeting has not been determined.

Rev. W. H. Clark was named chairman of the speakers' committee.

A resolution opposing the closing of the Third street school, an approved by the board of education, was adopted by the club at Monday night's meeting.

Cod Liver Oil Like Sun, Doctors Find In Research Work

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — The missing link between the animal and vegetable kingdoms may have been discovered in Yale Medical School, is the statement issued in describing research work done by Dr. I. Newton Kugelmann and Dr. Irvine McQuarrie, laboring in the Medical School Department of Pediatrics on a cure for rickets.

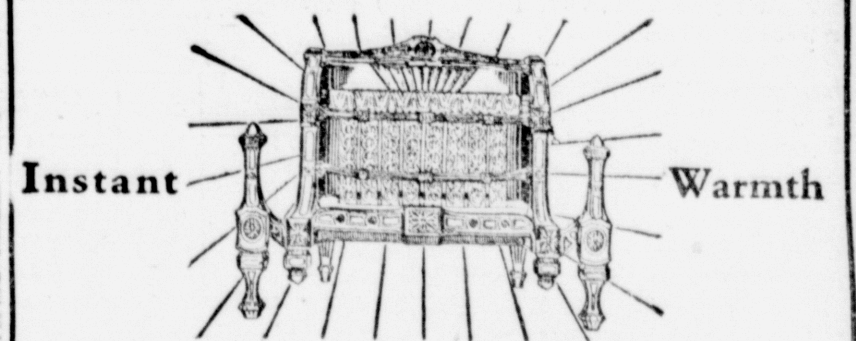

In the first place the doctors found that sunlight and cod liver oil had similar effects in curing rickets. They studied the proposition and then reached conclusions of interest. Says the report of the doctors' work: "Those who recall their days of childhood dosages may think it far fetched, indeed, to term cod liver oil 'bottled sunshine,' but it is a similarity of curative powers between sunlight and cod liver oil which led directly to the research work of these doctors."

They found that the direct application of sunlight, a physical force containing ultra violet rays, absorbed through the skin, and cod liver oil, taken into the body through the alimentary canal, worked similarly. It was the relation between the two these men desired to find.

After their work, the doctors declared that "the vista of possible results from this discovery leads to horizons beyond view." They decided, too, "there is, perhaps, the missing link between the plant and animal kingdoms." From this point research will be carried forward to other possible results.

Kellogg's Bran did more in two weeks than medicine taken in 20 years

Out of regard for your own health, read this letter:

Gentlemen: Your "Krumbed Bran," used by me as a cereal, has done more for me in two weeks than the hundreds of dollars' worth of medicine I have taken in last twenty years for constipation. It is wonderful, and it is so simple.

Yours truly, Arlington H. Carman, Patchogue, N. Y.

Mr. Carman's experience has been duplicated in thousands of homes. Why does Kellogg's Bran succeed when drugs and pills fail? The answer is simple. Drugs have an unnatural effect upon the bowels. They irritate the intestines. The more they are used, the more one has to use. Finally, they have no effect at all.

Kellogg's Bran STIMULATES the intestines. It cleans, sweeps and purifies them. It acts exactly as nature acts. And it is never necessary to increase the amount eaten. If eaten regularly, Kellogg's Bran is guaranteed to bring permanent relief to the most chronic cases of constipation, or your grocer returns your money. For Kellogg's Bran is ALL bran. Nothing but ALL bran can be so effective. That is why doctors recommend Kellogg's.

The wonderful, nut-like flavor of Kellogg's Bran is exclusive. It is delicious—totally unlike ordinary bran. Eat two tablespoons daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Eat it with milk or cream and in the recipes on every package. Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbed, is made in Battle Creek. Sold by all grocers.

Judith of Blue Lake Ranch

By JACKSON GREGORY.

"It's up to you," repeated Lee. "If you're not a coward after all, pick it up." Lee's hands were at his sides, his own revolver in his pocket. Quinlon was tempted. The evil lights in his eyes danced like witch-fires. Again he hesitated; but his hesitation was brief. With his whining, ugly laugh he lurched to the bar.

"Gimme a drink, Sandy," he commanded. "Neither now nor after a while," Sandy told him briefly. "I ain't dirtyin' my glasses that-a-way."

"There you are," jeered Quinlon, with a sullen sort of defiance. "You swat me over the head while I ain't lookin', an, then bring me in here where they're all your friends. If I drop you I get all mused up with their bullets. No, thanks."

"For the last time," said Lee, and his low voice was ominous, "I tell you what to do. If you don't do it, I'll kill you just the same. You've got your chance. Count ten seconds, Sandy."

"One," said Sandy, watching the clock on the wall, "two, three, four, five, six, seven—"

"Curse you!" cried Quinlon then, a look of fear at last in his eyes. "I'll get you for this some day, Bud Lee. Now you've got me—"

"Keep on counting, Sandy," commanded Lee.

"Eight," said Sandy, "nine—"

"I lied!" snapped Quinlon. "An' I'm leavin' town for a while."

And lurching as he walked, he made his way out of the room, his eyes on the floor, his face a burning red.

"Carson and I are riding back to the ranch as soon as our horses rest up and get some grain," said Lee, his fingers slowly rolling a brown cigarette. "We'll mosey out now, see Quinlon on his way and drop back to make up a little game of draw for it couple of hours. Strike you about right, Billy?"

And you, Watson? And you, Parker?"

They listened to him, took the cue from him, and allowed what lay between him and Chris Quinlon to lie in silence. But there was not a man there but in his own fashion was saying to himself:

"It's a good beginning. But where's the end going to be?"

CHAPTER XII

Burning Memory.

As June had slipped by, so did July and August. On Blue Lake ranch life flowed smoothly. Men were too busy with each day's work to sit into the night prophesying trouble ahead. And in truth it seemed that if Bayne Trevors had ever actively opposed the success of the Sanford venture he had by now accepted the role of inactivity forced upon him by circumstance. He was with the Western Lumber company, as director and district superintendent, seemingly giving all his dynamic force to the legitimate affairs of the company.

But there were those who placed no faith in the obvious. Bud Lee kept in touch with Rocky Bend and learned that Quinlon had not come back; that no one knew where he had gone. Carson's man, Shorty, was sought by Emmet Sawyer and his disappearance was like that of a pricked bubble; it seemed that Shorty had no actual physical existence or that, if he had, he had taken it into some other corner of the world. Quinlon's friends had also gone from Rocky Bend, like Quinlon leaving behind them no sign to show where they had gone.

Knowing Quinlon, as he did, and having his own conception of the character of Bayne Trevors, Bud Lee said to himself that too great a quiet portended strife to come. If Quinlon was the man to carry in his breast the rate that drove him to the murder of Judith's father, then he was the man to remember the humiliation he had suffered at Lee's hands, to remember and to strike back when the time was ripe.

Judith had heard of the night in Rocky Bend, a lurid and wonderfully distorted account from Mrs. Simpson, who had received it in a letter from her daughter.

"So that was what Bud Lee did after he kissed me!" mused Judith.

She sent immediately for Carson and forced from him the full story. Dismissing Carson, she remained for a long while alone. Only one remark had she made to the cattle foreman, and that a little aside from the issue occupying his mind:

"Keep your weather eye open for what's in the wind," she told him briefly. "Behind Quinlon is Trevors, and the year isn't over yet."

The ranch was stocked to its utmost. Carson had bought another herd of cattle; Lee had added to his string of horses. The dry season was on them, herds were moved higher up the slopes into the fresh pastures. Carson, converted now to the silos, was a man with one idea and that idea easilage. Again the alfalfa acreage was extended, so that each head of cattle might have its daily auxiliary fodder. Carson now agreed with Judith in the matter of holding back sales for the high prices which would come at the heels of the lean months.

The man Donley, who had brought to the ranch the pigeons carrying cholera, was tried in Rocky Bend. The evidence, though circumstantial, was strong against him, and the prosecution was pushed hard. But it was little surprise to any one at the ranch when the trial resulted in a hung jury. The ablest lawyer in the county had defended Donley, and finally, late in August, secured his acquittal. The man himself did not have ten dollars in the world; the attorney taking his base was a high-priced lawyer. Obviously, to Judith Sanford at least, Bayne Trevors was standing back of every play his hirlings made.

Dre Tripp had the hog cholera in hand. And every day, out with the live stock whose well-being was his responsibility, he worked as he had never worked before, watchful, eager, suspicious.

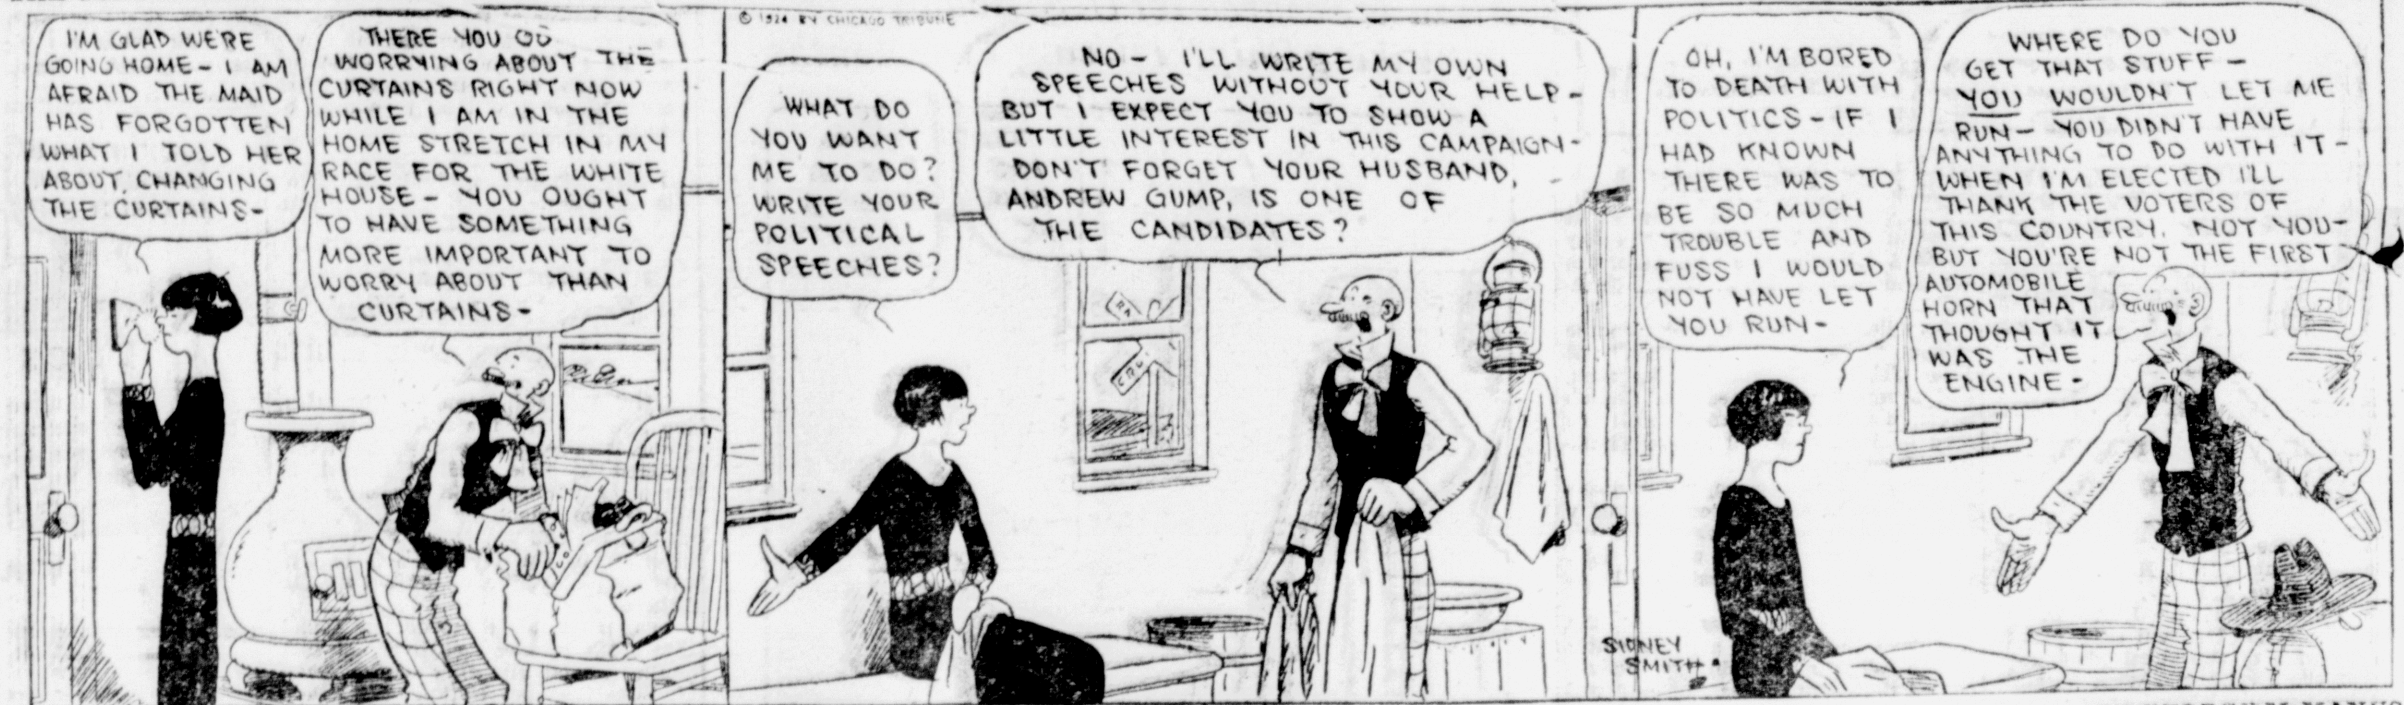

"If they'll drop cholera down on us out of the blue sky," he snapped, "I'd like to know what they won't try."

"It's up to you," repeated Lee. "If you're not a coward after all, pick it up." Lee's hands were at his sides, his own revolver in his pocket. Quinlan was tempted. The evil lights in his eyes danced like witch-fires. Again he hesitated; but his hesitation was brief. With his whining, ugly laugh he lurched to the bar.

"Gimme a drink, Sandy," he commanded. "Neither now nor after a while," Sandy told him briefly. "I ain't dirtyin' my glasses that-a-way."

"There you are," jeered Quinlan, with a sullen sort of defiance. "You swat me over the head while I ain't lookin', an, then bring me in here where they're all your friends. If I drop you I get all mused up with their bullets. No, thanks."

"For the last time," said Lee, and his low voice was ominous, "I tell you what to do. If you don't do it, I'll kill you just the same. You've got your chance. Count ten seconds, Sandy."

"One," said Sandy, watching the clock on the wall, "two, three, four, five, six, seven—"

"Curse you!" cried Quinlan then, a look of fear at last in his eyes. "I'll get you for this some day, Bud Lee. Now you've got me—"

"Keep on counting, Sandy," commanded Lee.

"Eight," said Sandy, "nine—"

"I lied!" snapped Quinlan. "An' I'm leavin' town for a while."

And lurching as he walked, he made his way out of the room, his eyes on the floor, his face a burning red.

"Carson and I are riding back to the ranch as soon as our horses rest up and get some grain," said Lee, his fingers slowly rolling a brown cigarette. "We'll mose' out now, see Quinlan on his way and drop back to make up a little game of draw for a couple of hours. Strike you about right, Billy? And you, Watson? And you, Parker?"

They listened to him, took the cue from him, and allowed what lay between him and Chris Quinlan to lie in silence. But there was not a man there but in his own fashion was saying to himself: "It's a good beginning. But where's the end going to be?"

CHAPTER XII

Burning Memory.

As June had slipped by, so did July and August. On Blue Lake ranch life flowed smoothly. Men were too busy with each day's work to sit into the night prophesying trouble ahead. And in truth it seemed that if Bayne Trevors had ever actively opposed the success of the Sanford venture he had by now accepted the role of inactivity forced upon him by circumstance. He was with the Western Lumber company, as director and district superintendent, seemingly giving all his dynamic force to the legitimate affairs of the company.

But there were those who placed no faith in the obvious. Bud Lee kept in touch with Rocky Bend and learned that Quinlan had not come back; that no one knew where he had gone. Carson's man, Shorty, was sought by Emmet Sawyer and his disappearance was like that of a pricked bubble; it seemed that Shorty had no actual physical existence or that, if he had, he had taken it into some other corner of the world. Quinlan's friends had also gone from Rocky Bend, like Quinlan leaving behind them no sign to show where they had gone.

Knowing Quinlan, as he did, and having his own conception of the character of Bayne Trevors, Bud Lee said to himself that too great a quiet portended strife to come. If Quinlan was the man to carry in his breast the rate that drove him to the murder of Judith's father, then he was the man to remember the humiliation he had suffered at Lee's hands, to remember and to strike back when the time was ripe.

Judith had heard of the night in Rocky Bend, a lurid and wonderfully distorted account from Mrs. Simpson, who had received it in a letter from her daughter.

"So that was what Bud Lee did after he kissed me!" mused Judith.

She sent immediately for Carson and forced from him the full story. Dismissing Carson, she remained for a long while alone. Only one remark had she made to the cattle foreman, and that a little aside from the issue occupying his mind:

"Keep your weather eye open for what's in the wind," she told him briefly. "Behind Quinlan is Trevors, and the year isn't over yet."

The ranch was stocked to its utmost. Carson had bought another herd of cattle; Lee had added to his string of horses. The dry season was on them, herds were moved higher up the slopes into the fresh pastures. Carson, converted now to the silos, was a man with one idea and that idea was silage. Again the alfalfa acreage was extended, so that each head of cattle might have its daily auxiliary fodder. Carson now agreed with Judith in the matter of holding back sales for the high prices which would come at the heels of the lean months.

The man Donley, who had brought to the ranch the pigeons carrying cholera, was tried in Rocky Bend. The evidence, though circumstantial, was strong against him, and the prosecution was pushed hard. But it was little surprise to any one at the ranch when the trial resulted in a hung jury. The ablest lawyer in the county had defended Donley, and finally, late in August, secured his acquittal. The man himself did not have ten dollars in the world; the attorney taking his base was a high-priced lawyer. Obviously, to Judith Sanford at least, Bayne Trevors was standing back of every play his hirelings made.

Doc Tripp had the hog cholera in hand. And every day, out with the live stock whose well-being was his responsibility, he worked as he had never worked before, watchful, eager, suspicious.

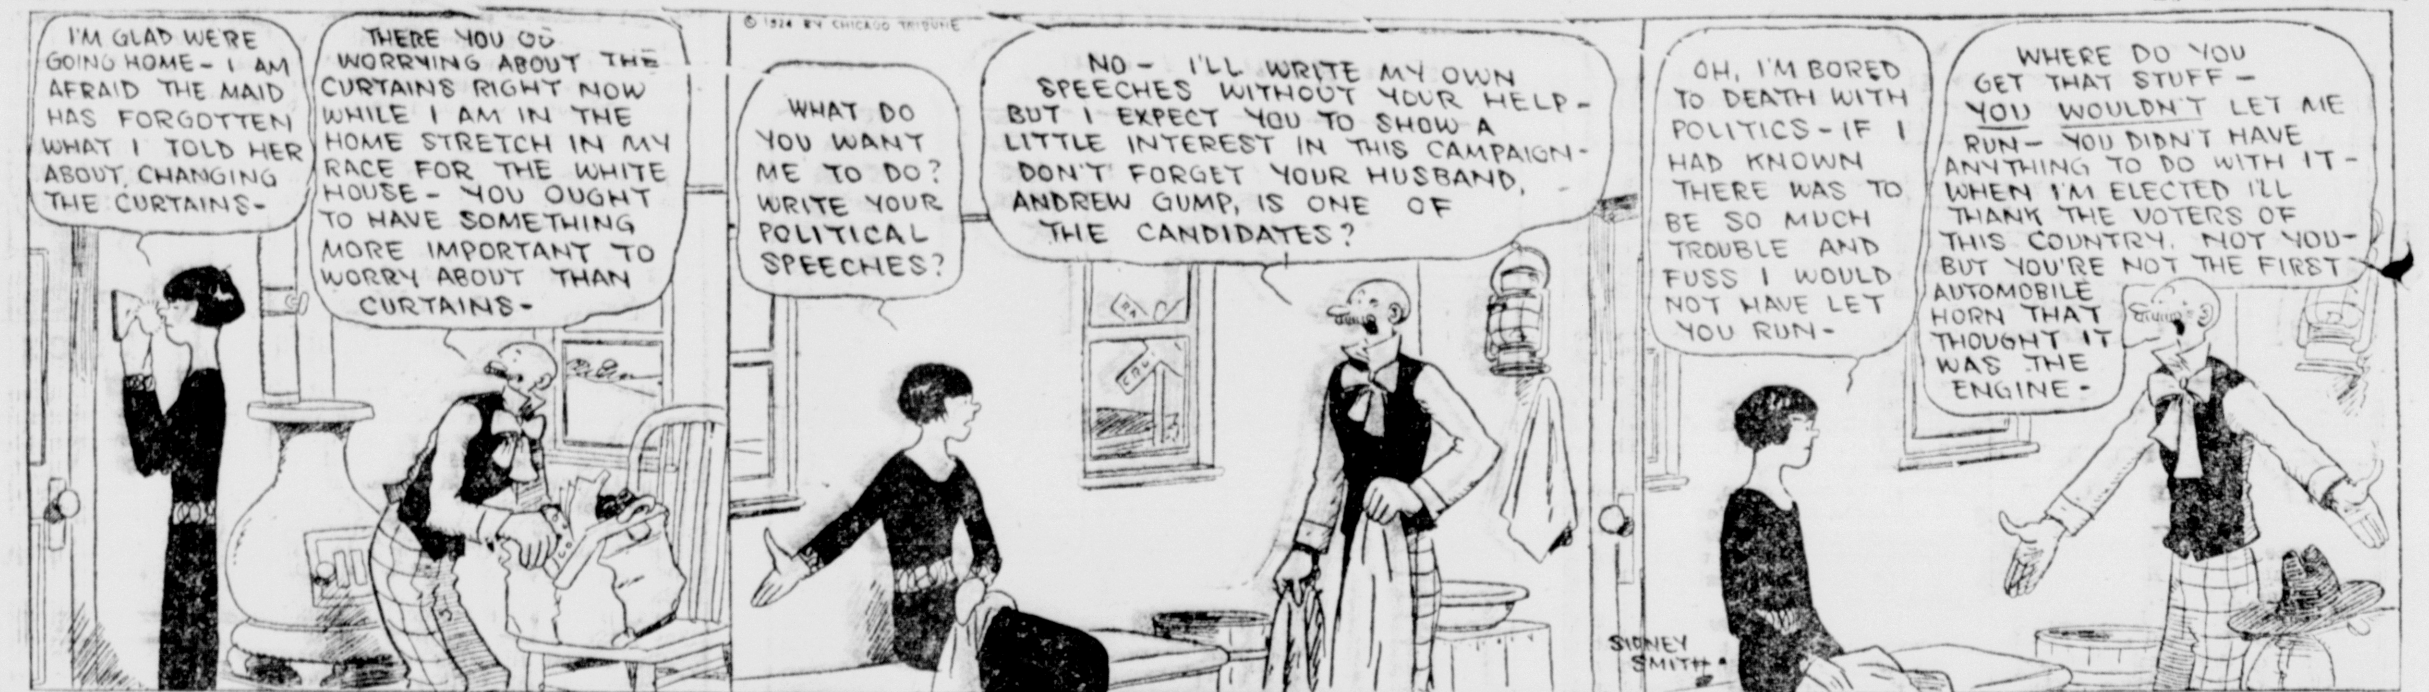

"If they'll drop cholera down on us out of the blue sky," he snapped, "I'd like to know what they won't try."

Prattle About Picture Plays

It is getting to be the fashion to film pictures abroad to get the correct atmosphere. Therefore it was not surprising that Tom Terriss, director, took his "Bandolero" company to Spain and Cuba to be screened. They have just returned and we will soon have a chance to see Renee Adoree, Pedro de Cordoba, Gustave Von Seyffertitz and the others who went with Mr. Terriss disporting themselves in Spain—that land of castles and bull-fights. We are promised a real bull-fight, too, and it is said a real-honest-to-goodness torreador—and a famous one at that—consented to appear in one scene.

Renee Adoree, the little heroine of "The Bandolero," has been abroad before as she was born in France, which is next door to Spain. If you don't remember her in "Made in Heaven," in which she appeared for Goldwyn, you probably recall her in Fox's "Monte Cristo," "A Self Made Man," "West of Chicago," "Honor First," "Mixed Faces," "The Strongest" and "The Eternal Struggle," are other pictures in which this vivacious principle part in Goldwyn's "A Thief of Paradise," which George Fitzmaurice is directing. It is an adaptation of Leonard Merrick's novel, "The Worldlings." Doris Kenyon and Ronald Coleman also have parts in this production.

We may have a revival of the bicycling craze which struck the civilized world in the very last of the nineteenth century. Colleen Moore will be held responsible as she learned to ride for her part in Edna Ferber's "So Big" and liked the exercise so well that she has been whizzing about Hollywood on a wheel ever since.

little actress took a leading part. Of course she is small and has dark hair and eyes. We always picture French women that way and in this case, at least, it is true.

And while we are on the subject of Renée and "The Bandolero," we may as well state that the aforesaid director, Tom Terriss, sent a special print of the picture as soon as it was cut and titled, to the American ambassador, Alexander P. Moore, in Madrid for presentation to the king and queen of Spain in acknowledgment of their kindness in directing that the motion picture producer be given every assistance. TAKE JESUS INTO SCALE WITH YOU, BIEDERWOLF URGES

Dr. W. E. Biederwolf, in his sermon at the tabernacle Monday evening, said:

"Thou art weighed in the balances and found wanting."

The above words from Daniel 5:27 were the text of Dr. W. E. Biederwolf's sermon at the tabernacle Monday night which follows:

I read a story some time ago about a poor old "geezer" who had never been to the city. He went once and when he came back to the village people said, "Old Johnson's mighty stuck up since he's been to the city; see how he leans back and throws up his head." "Oh," said one, "he can't help that; he got that bend in his back from looking up at the tall buildings." I've always had great sympathy with the old man, for I always spent a part of my time doing the same thing. The modern skyscrapers are wonders. If you'd been in Babylon during the time of Belshazzar, you'd been looking up some, too. We have got a good many architectural wonders today, but in some respects we've never yet touched the ancients. Babylon was a city of wonders. The walls of the old city were 60 miles in circumference; there were 25 gates of solid brass on each side of the square. Old Nebuchadnezzar built a mountain 496 feet high; great terraces ran around it, supported by huge arches above which the soil was laid so deep the largest trees had room to anchor their roots, and there far up above the city below blossomed and bloomed all the beauty of the flowery tropics until it seemed as if the angels of God had come down and planted the clouds with the flowers of paradise.

But I can't stop to tell you of this wonderful city. If it were beautiful in the day, it was doubly so in the night. It is night now and I want you to come over to the king's palace with me. A royal feast is on. Young Belshazzar, the second ruler of the realm, is to do himself proud tonight.

Belshazzar's father was the real king, but while he was off on a military expedition, the Medes and Persians besieged the city. They shut the father of Belshazzar out, and they shut Belshazzar in, and so Belshazzar had to assume the reigns of government. He got puffed up over his power; he got chesty, as you say today and he proposes to give a royal banquet as a sort of inaugural ceremony. The palace is brilliant with beauty. A thousand of his lords are there and ladies, too; his wives and his concubines; the "bonton" of society and the high rollers in general.

The Great Feast.

Hark to the rustle of the silken robes; to the music of harps; and cymbals. See the flashing candelabra and the blaze of the jewels, clustering on fingers and arms and necks of the Babylonish beauties. The song and the dance begins. The wine flows and they wax wanton and lewd. The half naked dancing women come on and with music to suit, they wriggle and worm their way in and out among the tables, with sensual contortions of the oriental dance, while bacchanalian laughter echoes from wall to wall, and they shout in daring revel, "Oh, King Belshazzar, live forever." And every minute the king's head kept swelling; he imagined himself about the biggest thing in the universe, and he wanted to show his contempt for that little God the Jews called Jehovah, and sent over to the heathen temple for the holy vessel of gold and silver and which had been placed there by his grandfather, Nebuchadnezzar, who had brought them back as trophies, out of the temples of Jerusalem. "Fill them up," he cried, "drink to your king," and while they sang the praise of the gods and gold and silver and brass and wood and stone, they blasphemed and sneered at the God of the Jews, and cried, "Huzza, huzza, for the great Belshazzar."

But look, look, look—what strange thing is this. For suddenly as they revel, the stillness of death fell on them, and out from the air shot the mysterious fingers of an armless hand and on the plastering of the wall wrote in letters of living light, words that burned and blazed. The king grew pale; his goblet crashed to the floor; his knees smote together.

No wonder some people can't understand the things of God. They expected to put the king wise, but they never saw hieroglyphics of this fashion before, they stood there speechless and then the king was told about Daniel—that he was a man of God, a captive, who had been brought by Nebuchadnezzar from Jerusalem, and Belshazzar told them to bring him quick, and he said to him, "Daniel, I'm mighty glad to see you." That's the way with a lot of you, always glad to see the preacher when no one else can help you. Just let the doctor shake his head, and then the preacher's welcome. And he said, "Daniel, I've heard about you, and they tell me the spirit of the gods is in you, and that you can make interpretations and dissolve doubt, and I want you to read that handwriting on the wall there. I've a bunch of nineties here on fat salary, but they can't read now, and they're all in. Now if you can decipher that writing, get busy, and I'll give you a purple suit, and you can ride in a chariot, and be next to me in the kingdom."

Daniel's Integrity.

And Daniel said, "Keep your chain and your gifts. I don't want them." Daniel was a boy you couldn't buy. He'd rather walk in righteousness over cobblestones with bleeding feet, than ride to hell in the finest chariot a king ever drove. He said, "Don't you remember Nebuchadnezzar, how he got the big head and thought he was the whole thing, and passed God up, and didn't God send judgment on him, and make him go out and eat grass with the cows and live like a beast? And here you are blaspheming God and living like the devil. Haven't you got sense enough to see that it don't pay to sneer at God? Keep your chain and your robe and give your rewards to another, but I'll read the writing for you. This is it: 'Mene—God hath numbered thy kingdom and finished it; Tekel, Thou art weighed in the balances and art found wanting. Upharsin, Thy kingdom is divided and given to the Medes and Persians.'"

As the words of Daniel died away, the trumping of a mighty army was heard in the streets below. The river Euphrates ran under the wall, and through the city, and Cyrus had dug a channel and turned the river out of its course, and walked dry shod under the wall along the river bed and the army of the Medes and Persians is thundering at the palace gate.

End of a Party.

There's a mighty crash, then tramp, tramp, tramp, up the stairs they come. The drunken guests start for the doors, but they burst open, and the soldiers rush in with a thousand gleaming knives. The palace of mirth becomes the hall of death. Belshazzar stands fixed with fright, as a mighty scimitar comes down upon his head and he drops. In a few minutes the whole thing is done and nothing is left but the debris of broken vessels and torn banners and the slush of wine, mingled with the blood of murdered men and women and the kicked and spurned and bleeding body of a dead king, for "That night was Belshazzar the king of the Chaldeans slain."

How much do you weigh? "Tekel" is the text tonight, "Thou art weighed in the balance and found wanting."

I want to find out how much you weigh in God's scales tonight, and I want to find out how much I weigh. It's God's scales we are to get into tonight and not man's. Public opinion don't help you out any in God's sight. Maybe you've got three inches in "Who's Who in America" but that won't help you out any in hell. You can be a heavyweight of the first water in your neighbor's estimation and a featherweight in God's. Let us see what we weigh in God's scales. You'll find the weights over in Exodus. Everybody knows them.

Who Is Your God?

The first one is: "Thou shalt have no other Gods before me." Every man has a God. There is something in the center of his life around which his whole life revolves, and that, whatever it is, is God for that man. If the true God isn't enthroned in your life then a false God reigns and that is your idol. You don't have to go to Africa or China to find heathen. If you are putting something else before God, black face, yellow face, or white face, you're heathen.

Some men worship themselves. It's a big I and little God. Some men worship money. They make an idol of wealth. That wouldn't be any more true of men if they got on their knees and prayed for it. The American dollar has got "in God We Trust" on it, and it ought to stay there. Horace Greely called it the "Almighty Dollar." We hold up our hands at this irreverence, but it's true that some men trust a mighty sight more in the dollar than they do in God. The lust for gold is the curse of the age. Men will defy God and sell their conscience to add a few more dollars to their bank account and increase their rating a little more in Bradstreet and Dun.

Society Worshipers.

Some people worship society. You dress the way you do and you do the things you do because society expects it. If you'd put God first and society last your gang wouldn't have any use for you and you'd have to skidoo. The woman who has the most withering, milder influence on face of God's earth is not the poor woman who has lost her virtue; it is the wife sipping, punch guzzling, fudge eating, frappe sucking woman, who lives for mere dress and social functions.

There are women living in East Liverpool now and if they should die tonight you wouldn't have to preach any funeral sermons. Put them in their coffin and go get their jewelry and their décollete dress and their eyebrow pencils and their number 15 rouge and pile them on their coffin and you'll have the story of their life and know what they lived for. Society was their god.

The second commandment is: "Thou shalt not bow down to any graven image." It's all right to make images and pictures of the Christ, but it's all wrong to bow down to them and worship them. You don't need any picture if any prophet or any preacher or any priest or any person, but God wants you to come right into His presence and worship Him.

Now let's look at the third weight. "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain, for the Lord will not hold him guiltless that taketh His name in vain."

Get in the scales and see how much you weigh.

Let the slightest provocation arise and some men think they've got to cuss.

Why Do Men Swear?

And that's about the way with some of you. When a man can't do anything but cuss under such circumstances, he's pretty low down in my opinion. But some men just cuss without provocation. You've just been at it so long it's become a habit with you. Talk about being a gentleman! Could your wife stand around on street corners and chew, spit and cuss and damn and be a lady? Could your mother do it? No, of course they couldn't. Well, neither can you do it and be a gentleman. It's the language of hell; God says he won't hold the profane man guiltless, and that word guiltless in the original is "clean." God won't hold him clean. And if there's anything shows a man's rotten and putrid and low down character, it's to see him stand around and cuss and cheat and emit a whole string of car-bom-bom-bom, devil-pleasing profanity. If you call a man a certain name, no matter how mean or God-forsaken he is he'll fight you in a minute because it reflects upon his mother. He'll say, "you take that back or I'll smash your mouth," and yet no mother ever loved you as God loved, or ever did for you as God did, and a man's got to get pretty low down when he's got no respect for God, and God isn't going to hold him guiltless.

The Fourth Commandment.

Now look at the fourth weight. "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy."

More than one far-seeing statesman from abroad and at home has declared much of the secret of America's greatness to be in her past high regard for the Lord's day. If that is so, and I believe it is, we need to look out, for we're getting mighty careless about it these days. Chief Justice McLean said: "Where there is no

Christian Sabbath, there is no Christian morality, and where there is no Christian morality, there can be no national greatness."

Some people want a continental Sunday. If you'd think twice you wouldn't. I am an American, first, last and always, but no one is more ready than I to welcome the foreigner to these shores, and to our citizenship. My father was foreign born, but I say if a European don't like the laws of this country let him stay at home. Why does he come over here and make war on our institutions? Who are the anarchists? Nine-tenths of 'em are foreigners. Who are the people demanding a wide-open Sunday? Nine-tenths of 'em are foreigners. Who were the saloon-keepers and brewers? Nine-tenths of 'em were foreigners. And we've dipped our colors to 'em and lowered our standards and now they're asking us to kick the Bible out of the public schools. It makes my blood boil.

Our fathers came to the white sands of Massachusetts Bay, and there to the music of the ocean wave and the whispering pine they solemnized the marriage of liberty and religion and founded this glorious nation on the everlasting word of God, and they sealed it with the richest blood that ever flowed through patriot's veins and if the atheists and infidels and

The Fifth Commandment.

The fifth commandment, "Honor thy father and thy mother, that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee." Campbell Morgan has well said, "A

HEADACHES GONE TIRED NO MORE

Gives Credit to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Hopes Other Women Will Benefit by Her Experience

Skowhegan, Me.—"I was sick most of the time and could not get around to do my work without being all tired out so I would have to lie down. One day when I was reading the paper I saw the Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertisement and saw what it did for other women, so I thought I would try it. I have taken three bottles, and cannot begin to tell you what it has already done for me. I do all my work now and keep up the whole day long without lying down. I have no more headaches nor tired feelings. I hope every woman who takes the Vegetable Compound will get as much benefit out of it as I have."

—Mrs. PERCY W. RICHARDSON, R.F.D. No. 2, Skowhegan, Maine.

You have just read how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped Mrs. Richardson. She gave it a trial after the same way it had done for other women. For nearly fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been thus praised by women. For sale by druggists everywhere.

TAKE JESUS INTO SCALE WITH YOU, BIEDERWOLF URGES

Dr. W. E. Biederwolf, in his sermon at the tabernacle Monday evening, said:

"Thou art weighed in the balances and found wanting."

The above words from Daniel 5:27 were the text of Dr. W. E. Biederwolf's sermon at the tabernacle Monday night which follows:

I read a story some time ago about a poor old "goose" who had never been to the city. He went once and when he came back to the village people said, "Old Johnson's mighty stuck up since he's been to the city; see how he leans back and throws up his head." "Oh," said one, "he can't help that; he got that bend in his back from looking up at the tall buildings." I've always had great sympathy with the old man, for I always spent a part of my time doing the same thing. The modern skyscrapers are wonders to me, but I want to tell you tonight, if you'd been in Babylon during the time of Belshazzar, you'd been looking up some, too. We have got a good many architectural wonders today, but in some respects we've never yet touched the ancients. Babylon was a city of wonders. The walls of the old city were 60 miles in circumference; there were 25 gates of solid brass on each side of the square. Old Nebuchadnezzar built a mountain 496 feet high; great terraces ran around it, supported by huge arches above which the soil was piled so deep the largest trees had room to anchor their roots, and there far up above the city below blossomed and bloomed all the beauty of the flowerly tropics until it seemed as if the angels of God had come down and planted the clouds with the flowers of paradise.

But I can't stop to tell you of this wonderful city. It is more beautiful in the day, it were doubly so in the night. It is night now and I want you to come over to the king's palace with me. A royal feast is on. Young Belshazzar, the second ruler of the realm, is to do himself proud tonight.

Belshazzar's father was the real king, but while he was off on a military expedition, the Medes and Persians besieged the city. They shut the father of Belshazzar out, and they shut Belshazzar in, and so Belshazzar had to assume the reigns of government. He got puffed up over his power; he got chesty, as you say today and he proposes to give a royal banquet as a sort of inaugural ceremony. The palace is brilliant with beauty. A thousand of his lords are there and ladies, too; his wives and his concubines; the "bonton" of society and the high rollers in general.

The Great Feast.

Hark to the rustle of the silken robes; to the music of harps; and cymbals. See the flashing candelabra and the blaze of the jewels, clustering on fingers and arms and necks of the Babylonian beauties. The song and the dance begins. The wine flows and they wax wanton and low. The half naked dancing women come on and with music to suit, they wriggle and worm their way in and out among the tables, with sensual contortions of the oriental dance, while bacchanalian laughter echoes from wall to wall, and they shout in daring revel, "Oh, King Belshazzar, live forever." And every minute the king's head kept swelling; he imagined himself about the biggest thing in the universe, and he wanted to show his contempt for that little God the Jews called Jehovah, and sent over to the heathen temple for the holy vessel of gold and silver and which had been placed there by his grandfather, Nebuchadnezzar, who had brought them back as trophies, out of the temples of Jerusalem. "Fill them up," he cried, "drink to your king," and while they sang the praise of the gods and gold and silver and brass and wood and stone, they blasphemed and sneered at the God of the Jews, and cried, "Huzza, huzza, for the great Belshazzar."

But look, look, look—what strange thing is this. For suddenly as they revel, the stillness of death fell on them, and out from the air shot the mysterious fingers of an armless hand and on the plastering of the wall wrote in letters of living light, words that burned and blazed. The king grew pale; his goblet crashed to the floor; his knees smote together.

No wonder some people can't understand the things of God. They expected to put the king wise, but they never saw hieroglyphics of this fashion before, they stood there speechless and then the king was told about Daniel—that he was a man of God, a captive, who had been brought by Nebuchadnezzar from Jerusalem, and Belshazzar told them to bring him quick, and he said to him, "Daniel, I'm mighty glad to see you." That's the way with a lot of you, always glad to see the preacher when no one else can help you. Just let the doctor shake his head, and then the preacher's welcome. And he said, "Daniel, I've heard about you and they tell me the spirit of the gods is in you, and that you can make interpretations and dissolve doubts, and I want you to read that handwriting on the wall there. I've a bunch of nineties here on fat salary, but they can't read it, they're up against the real article now, and they're all in. Now if you can decipher that writing, get busy, and I'll give you a purple suit, and you can ride in a chariot, and be next to me in the kingdom."

Daniel's Integrity.

And Daniel said, "Keep your chain and your girths. I don't want them." Daniel was a boy you couldn't buy. He'd rather walk in righteousness over cobblestones with bleeding feet, than ride to hell in the finest chariot a king ever drove. He said, "Don't you remember Nebuchadnezzar, how he got the big head and thought he was the whole thing, and passed God up, and didn't God send judgment on him, and make him go out and eat grass with the cows and live like a beast? And here you are blaspheming God and living like the devil. Haven't you got sense enough to see that it don't pay to sneer at God? Keep your chain and your robe and give your rewards to another, but I'll read the writing for you. This is it: 'Mene—God hath numbered thy kingdom and finished it. Tekel, Thou art weighed in the balances and art found wanting. Upharsin, Thy kingdom is divided and given to the Medes and Persians.'"

As the words of Daniel died away, the trumping of a mighty army was heard in the streets below. The river Euphrates ran under the wall, and through the city, and Cyrus had dug a channel and turned the river out of its course, and walked dry shed under the wall along the river bed and the army of the Medes and Persians is thundering at the palace gates.

End of a Party.

There's a mighty crash, then tramp, tramp, tramp, up the stairs they come. The drunken guests start for the doors, but they burst open, and the soldiers rush in with a thousand gleaming knives. The palace of mirth becomes the hall of death. Belshazzar stands fixed with fright, as a mighty scimitar comes down upon his head and he drops. In a few minutes the whole thing is done and nothing is left but the debris of broken vessels and torn banners and the slush of wine, mingled with the blood of murdered men and women and the kicked and spurned and bleeding body of a dead king, for "That night was Belshazzar the king of the Chaldeans slain."

How much do you weigh?

"Tekel" is the text tonight, "Thou art weighed in the balance and found wanting."

I want to find out how much you weigh in God's scales tonight, and I want to find out how much I weigh. It's God's scales we are to get into tonight and not man's. Public opinion don't help you out any in God's sight. Maybe you've got three inches in "Who's Who in America?" but that won't help you out any in hell. You can be a heavyweight of the first water in your neighbor's estimation and a featherweight in God's. Let us see what we weigh in God's scales. You'll find the weights over in Exodus. Everybody knows them.

Who is Your God?

The first one is: "Thou shalt have no other Gods before me." Every man has a God. There is something in the center of his life around which his whole life revolves and that whatever it is, is God for that man. If the true God isn't enthroned in your life then a false God reposes and that is your idol. You don't have to go to Africa or China to find heathen. If you are putting something else before God, black face, yellow face, or white face, you're heathen.

Some men worship themselves. It's a big I and little God. Some men worship money. They make an idol of wealth. That wouldn't be any more true of men if they got on their knees and prayed for it. The American dollar has got "in God We Trust" on it, and it ought to stay there. Horace Greely called it the "Almighty Dollar." We hold up our hands at this irreverence, but it's true that some men trust a mighty sight more in the dollar than they do in God. The lust for gold is the curse of the age. Men will defy God and sell their conscience to add a few more dollars to their bank account and increase their rating a little more in Broadway and Dan.

Society Worshipers.

Some people worship society. You dress the way you do and you do the things you do because society expects it. If you'd put God first and society last your gang wouldn't have any use for you and you'd have to skidoo. The woman who has the most withering, mellowing influence on face of God's earth is not the poor woman who has lost her virtue; it is the wife sipping, punch guzzling, fudge eating, frazzled, sucking woman, who lives for mere dress and social functions.

There are women living in East Liverpool now and if they should die tonight you wouldn't have to preach any funeral sermons. Put them in their coffin and go get their jewelry and their decollete dress and their eyebrow pencils and their number 18 rouge and pile them on their coffin and you'll have the story of their life and know what they lived for. Society was their god.

The second commandment is: "Thou shalt not bow down to any graven image." It's all right to make images and pictures of the Christ, but it's all wrong to bow down to them and worship them. You don't need any picture if any prophet or any preacher or any priest or any person, but God wants you to come right into His presence and worship Him.

Now let's look at the third weight. "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain, for the Lord will not hold him guiltless that taketh His name in vain."

Get in the scales and see how much you weigh.

Let the slightest provocation arise and some men think they've got to cuss.

Why Do Men Swear?

And that's about the way with some of you. When a man can't do anything but cuss under such circumstances, he's pretty low down in my opinion. But some men just cuss without provocation. You've just been at a so long it's become a habit with you. Talk about being a gentleman! Could your wife stand around on street corners and chew, spit and cuss and damn and be a lady? Could your mother do it? No, of course they couldn't. Well, neither can you do it and be a gentleman. It's the language of hell; God says he won't hold the profane man guiltless, and that word guiltless in the original is "clean." God won't hold him clean. And if there's anything shows a man's rotten and putrid and low down character, it's to see him stand around and cuss and chew and spit a whole string of ear-besmirching, devil-pleasing profanity. If you call a man a certain name, no matter how mean or God-forsaken he is he'll fight you in a minute because it reflects upon his mother. He'll say, "you take that back or I'll smash your mouth," and yet no mother ever loved you as God loved, or ever did for you as God did, and a man's got to get pretty low down when he's got no respect for God, and God isn't going to hold him guiltless.

The Fourth Commandment.

Now look at the fourth weight. "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy."

More than one far-seeing statesman from abroad and at home has declared much of the secret of America's greatness to be in her past high regard for the Lord's day. If that is so, and I believe it is, we need to look out, for we're getting mighty careless about it these days. Chief Justice McLean said: "Where there is no

Christian Sabbath, there is no Christianity, and where there is no Christianity, there can be no national greatness."

Some people want a continental Sunday. If you'd think twice you wouldn't. I am an American, first, last and always, but no one is more ready than I to welcome the foreigner to these shores, and to our citizenship. My father was foreign born, but I say if a European don't like the laws of this country let him stay at home. Why does he come over here and make war on our institutions? Who are the anarchists? Nine-tenths of 'em are foreigners. Who are the people demanding a wide-open Sunday? Nine-tenths of 'em are foreigners. Who were the saloon-keepers and brewers? Nine-tenths of 'em were foreigners. And we've dipped our colors to 'em and lowered our standards and now they're asking us to kick the Bible out of the public schools. It makes my blood boil.

Our fathers came to the white sands of Massachusetts Bay, and there to the music of the ocean wave and the whispering pine they solemnized the marriage of liberty and religion and founded this glorious nation on the everlasting word of God, and they sealed it with the richest blood that ever flowed through patriot's veins and if the atheists and infidels and other rebels against Jesus Christ don't like our public schools where the word of God is read let 'em take their kids and hike out and found schools of their own. That's what I say and I stand here tonight and prophesy to you that in this fight that's going on now all over this land, the old Bible and the forces of righteousness are going to win out in the end, in spite of the supreme court of Illinois and others of its kind.

The Fifth Commandment.

The fifth commandment, "Honor thy father and thy mother, that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee." Campbell Morgan has well said, "A

HEADACHES GONE TIRED NO MORE

Gives Credit to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Hopes Other Women Will Benefit by Her Experience

Skowhegan, Me.—"I was sick most of the time and could not get around to do my work without being all tired out so I would have to lie down. One day when I was reading the paper I saw the Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertisement and saw what it did for other women, so I thought I would try it. I have taken three bottles, and cannot begin to tell you what it has already done for me. I do all my work now and keep up the whole day long without lying down. I have no more headaches nor tired feelings. I hope every woman who takes the Vegetable Compound will get as much benefit out of it as I have."

—Mrs. PERCY W. RICHARDSON, R. F. D. No. 2, Skowhegan, Maine.

You have just read how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped Mrs. Richardson. She gave it a trial after she saw what it had done for other women. For nearly fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been thus praised by women. For sale by druggists everywhere.

boy will never be a man if he always must obey his parents." There comes a time of individual responsibility, and the young man must choose for himself, even though his voice disregards the wish and judgment of his parents.

But there is a time when God expects him to obey. And many a young fellow is playing checkers with his nose behind his prison window, who might be traveling the highway of prosperity today if he had only listened to his mother's advice.

There's a lot of useless gum-chewing, gadding, good-for-nothing girls in these days who look upon mother as a necessary institution provided for the house, so they can gad about with a frivolous set and have a good time. They call mother "old fashioned" and pity her and pass up her advice when she tells them to give up certain society and to be in at decent hours, but some day when she's gone the limit and sits weeping with her legitimate offspring in her arms, she'll know that she was a fool and that her mother had a little sense after all.

The same thing is true of mother, God bless her, the dear old woman, with roses gone from her cheeks. God help you young men, and God help you young women, too. Show me the young man who is ashamed of his old father and mother, and you can just mark it down that he's trifling, good-for-nothing and will never prosper. "Honor thy father and thy mother that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee."

Many a young fellow is ashamed to see the worst father in the presence of his companions, and thinks it a sign of smartness to talk about the "old man" or the "old woman," but I'll tell you, sir, you may be ashamed of his calloused hands, his bronzed cheeks and his stooping form, but they are all the marks of his concern for you, and had he paid a little more attention to himself and less to his ingrate son he might have looked a little better now and had some of the intelligence which you think you got because you walked into school and mumbled into college over a way paved for you by his work and toil and sacrifice.

Thou Shalt Not Kill.

The sixth commandment: "Thou shalt not kill." My, what a text for a whole sermon!

You wouldn't murder anybody in cold blood, of course, but there are other ways to kill. You don't have to use a dagger or a gun to do it. You can do it inch by inch.

Do you want to kill your wife? You don't have to take an ax and chop her head in two. Just neglect her. Cut a bloody path into her heart every day with your brutal sermons.

Do you want to send your mother to an early grave? You don't have to take a gun and fire its load into her breast to do it.

Listen boys, many of you, if you would go home tonight and put your car down to your mother's heart you could hear the blood drip, drip, drip. Then shalt not kill.

The next weight is an awful one. I would like to leave it out of the scale if I dared, for I hate to think about it. But if I had a month I couldn't say all that ought to be said.

Some of you say, "never guilty." Then go and read Matthew 5:28-32, where it says, "He that looketh with lustful eyes." The charge passes from the overt act to the secret thought. We might plead innocent to the first, but God help us when he says "He that looketh." But let us pass on.

Thou Shalt Not Steal.

The eighth commandment. It says: "Thou shalt not steal."

There are just three ways to get property; have it given to you; work for it, or steal it. The first two the Bible recognizes as right and proper. Of the third it says "Thou shalt not."

Now maybe you never slipped your fingers into another man's purse and lifted his coin, although maybe you have. But there are other ways to steal. A man steals whenever he takes anything for which he does not give an adequate return either in money, property, or work.

A man or a woman who bets is a thief. No matter whether they bet on a horse race, an election, a football game or anything else. No matter whether he throws his cards at Monte Carlo or for some stake at the average bridge or whist party.

It's a crime for the newsboy to shoot craps in the street, but when a plunger in Wall Street gambles his millions and gets a corner on wheat and hogs and corn and bulls the prices up, and then unloads on the small traders all over the country who are big enough fools to send their hard earned money into the brokers, we don't call him a criminal. We call him a speculator, but he's a thief and a big one.

The only difference is we send the little thief to jail, and the big one to the legislature.

Do Merchants Steal?

And you, Mr. Merchant, did you say it was imported when it was made in New Jersey; did you say it was wool when it was half cotton? If you did you're a thief. Did you sell it for pure when it was adulterated; did you send out a lying advertisement; did you short-measure your customer? If you did you're a thief. And you, some of the rest of you, did you neglect to pay tariffs because the conductor neglected to collect it? You're a thief. You might as well go behind the counter and help yourself because the clerk's asleep and neglects to wait on you. Thou shalt not steal.

What we need is downright honesty. God give it to us.

Sin is sin and the sin of theft will damn your soul as quick as any other sin.

Thou art weighed in the balance and art found wanting. Men and women are undone. Remember in whose balance it is you are weighed—not man's, but God's. It's of little consequence what your lodge thinks of you, or how you stand in the public eye. But the great question you ought to be concerned about in the light of what has been said tonight is, "What does Almighty God think about you?"

Come, get in the scales.
Come on society leader.
Come on worshipper of gold.
Come on drunkard.
Come on gambler.
Come on adulterer.
Come on scandal-monger.
Come on extortionist.
Come on Sabbath defiler.

God pity you if you've got to stand in the presence of the judgment with the record of broken law behind you.

But you say, preacher, you've been a sinful man yourself; what will you do? "Listen, I'll get into the scales; I'm ready now. Pile in all the commandments, and then put on top of them that other commandment the first and greatest of them all, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy mind and with all thy soul," and I'm ready this minute to get in on the other side.

Are Preachers Guilty?

But you say, "Preacher, haven't you been guilty, too?"

Oh, my God, yes. But I'm ready to jump in and jump in with a shout. But I'll not go in alone. I'll say, "Come on, Christ, you step in with me, for thou art righteousness and my hope is in thee." Jesus came not to destroy the law but to fulfill it. He kept it absolutely and he paid the penalty for every sin or transgression and if you've ever broken the first commandment or the second or any of them, God through Jesus Christ will forgive you if you'll let him do it. Will you let him do it tonight? It may be your last call—and some day—some awful day, you'll be found wanting. I beg you to step in tonight and let Jesus step in with you. Will you do it?

Where Do You Park Your Car?

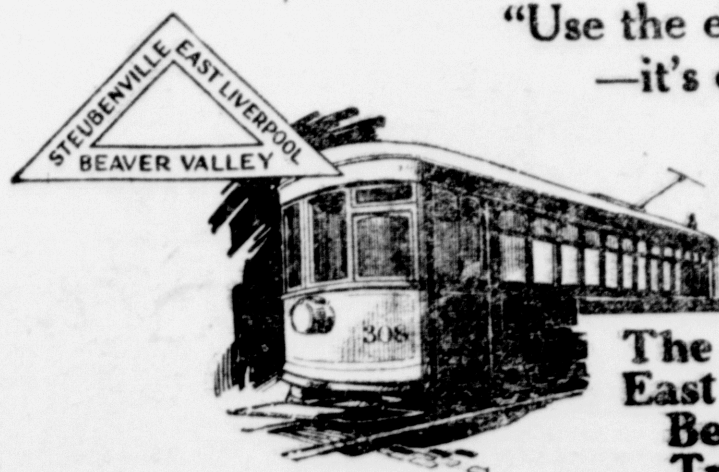

With the present restrictions on parking automobiles in city streets, it is becoming increasingly difficult to use an automobile in the daily trips to and from work.

Parking in the open spaces in sun and rain soon makes an impression on the appearance and even the life of a car, and so we find many business men and women using the more economical street car in their daily trips.

The street car provides quick, sure, transportation at minimum cost. Rain, snow or ice do not seriously interfere with trolley service. Day in and day out, all through the year, these people know they can depend on the trolley.

If you are an automobile owner you can save time, worry and expense by using the street cars more.

HEAVY DAMAGE CASE SETTLED

Emma McCartney Gets $600 as Result of Auto Crash.

The $25,000 damage action filed in common pleas court several months ago by Emma McCartney against Herbert Whitcomb, for damages growing out of an automobile accident was brought up in No. 2 court before Judge Charles S. Turnbaugh, and settled for $600. Motion for a new trial was waived, and judgment on the verdict was rendered, also for costs for plaintiff against the defendant.

In the case of E. L. Bradford and others against E. A. Birkheimer and others for a contribution for $245.52 and costs, Harry P. Morrow has been granted leave by Judge James G. Moore to plead by Nov. 1. City Solicitor Harry Brook of East Liverpool is representing the plaintiffs in this action, which is to force collections of amounts due on notes for stock sold in the defunct Ohio Patriot Publishing Co. of Lisbon.

The action to recover $750 and interest from Elek Simon by Joseph Simon has been settled out of court. Attorney K. L. Coburn of Salem represented the plaintiff in this action, while Hart & Koehler of Alliance represented the defendant.

In the case of the Peoples' Lumber company, of Salem against Oscar F. Stanton and others for the foreclosure of a mechanics lien, judgment for $161.54 has been rendered by default for the plaintiff against Byron Whitney and Lesley Whitney and Whitney Brothers, and the case has been continued as to the foreclosure of the mechanics lien.

A jury in No. 2 court rendered a verdict for the defendant in the case of H. A. Davis and Pearl Lucis, of East Palestine, doing a warehouse and trucking business against the Schroeder Piano company. The case was one that was carried up on appeal from a lower court. Attorney E. L. Lyon represented the plaintiff and L. M. Kyes the defendant.

VISITING JUDGE LAUDS COUNTY

"You have a great county here, and I'm going to enjoy every minute of my stay here," observed Judge Charles S. Turnbaugh, of Guernsey county, who is presiding in common pleas court No. 2 for two weeks, as visiting Judge James G. Moore.

"And I take it, judging from the character of cases you have here that you have a very law abiding county," the court went on. "Down our way the grand jury returned 40 indictments last time, including robbery, auto stealing and all that sort of thing. Happily, however, we did not have a murder case."

"I was very glad to meet Attorney Harry W. Volney of East Liverpool. He and I have known each other for many years, having been together in law school some years back."

DIVORCE SOUGHT BY SALEM WOMAN

ESTIMATE GIVEN FOR ROAD WORK

It will cost $5,100 to grade a road 24 feet wide from the Lincoln Highway east a distance of 3,100 feet in Liverpool township to Westfield, according to an estimate that County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk has presented to the trustees of Liverpool township.

The trustees have not informed the surveyor's office what type of surfacing is desired. The present grade of the road is 12.5 and it is proposed to cut the grade to 11.35.

Improvement of this road has been requested by the residents of Westfield, as it is their only outlet. In wet weather, the road is hub-deep with mud. The only other outlet is over the Y. & O. railroad.

The Liverpool township trustees will take action on the estimate at their next meeting.

MOTOR CLUB COLLECTS DATA

Seeks Mileage in Campaign to Reduce Traffic Accidents.

Co-operating in a state-wide movement to eliminate traffic accidents, the Columbiana County Motor club, having owners in all parts of Columbiana county, is asking its members to file data concerning the number of miles they have traveled without a serious accident or collision.

According to E. M. Diehl, secretary of the county automobile club, there are many members of the local organization with enviable driving records. Such records, he declares, should be given publicity as a means of impressing upon the average driver the fact that with caution and a full understanding of one's responsibilities when at the wheel, a driver can avoid accidents.

The result of the investigation will be announced as soon as the records are compiled, Secretary Diehl said.

Neon, a rare gas discovered by Sir William Ramsay, was practically useless to civilization for more than 20 years, until recently when a method of employing it as a spark detector or testing instrument for use by automobilists, was found.

"Covered Wagon," Big Film, at Ceramic At Popular Price

A magnificent epic of the early west is James Cruze's latest Paramount production, "The Covered Wagon," which will be the feature at the Ceramic theatre this week, excepting Friday.

This is a picturization of Emerson Hough's new novel of the same name, and is said to be one of the greatest photoplays ever seen on the screen.

The features embraced in this story are many and varied and include among others, the start of 350 covered wagons from Westport Landing (now Kansas City) in 1848. The terrors of fording freshest rivers, prairie fires and the like are depicted with great realism. A buffalo hunt is one of the most exciting scenes. Old Fort Bridger with a night attack and fight by day with Indians, are shown. The dividing of the trails to Oregon and California at old Fort Hall, a touch of the gold fever in California, magnificent shots and a culmination of the romance with the establishment of one of the first homesteads in Oregon—these are all incidents in a picture that bristles with big scenes.

Such historical characters as Kit Carson, John Bridger and Bill Jack-

The result of the investigation will be announced as soon as the records are compiled, Secretary Diehl said.

"Covered Wagon," Big Film, at Ceramic At Popular Price

A magnificent epic of the early west is James Cruze's latest Paramount production, "The Covered Wagon," which will be the feature at the Ceramic theatre this week, excepting Friday.

This is a picturization of Emerson Hough's new novel of the same name, and is said to be one of the greatest photoplays ever seen on the screen.

The features embraced in this story are many and varied and include among others, the start of 350 covered wagons from Westport Landing (now Kansas City) in 1843. The terrors of fording freshet rivers, prairie fires and the like are depicted with great realism. A buffalo hunt is one of the most exciting scenes. Old Fort Bridger with a night attack and fight by day with Indians, are shown. The dividing of the trails to Oregon and California at old Fort Hall, a touch of the gold fever in California, magnificent shots and a culmination of the romance with the establishment of one of the first homesteads in Oregon—these are all incidents in a picture that bristles with big scenes.

Such historical characters as Kit Carson, Jim Bridger and Bill Jackson, scouts and typical western characters, are portrayed in the Paramount screen version of the novel, which is conceded to be one of the most notable literary achievements of the present decade.

The various roles are in the hands of well known screen players. The leading man is J. Warren Kerrigan, and the leading woman is Lois Wilson. Alan Hale is the villain. Others in the cast include Tully Marshall, Ethel Wales, Charles Ogle and John Fox.

Lofty Positions of Ohio Conference Leaders May Suffer In Week's Games

Oberlin, Having Eliminated Reserve, Will Meet Denison; Big Red Eleven Perfecting Defense for Passing Attack.

By Stanley D. Koch.
CLEVELAND, Oct. 21.—Only a mediocre selection of football games are scheduled in the Ohio conference this week, but among them are several that impel that lofty position of the leaders.
Oberlin, having eliminated Western Reserve from championship aspiration, backs against the Denison eleven at Oberlin. The recent victory of the big Red over Cincinnati has increased the Granville hopes and the special attention which will be given to a forward pass defense, may be enough to upset the crimson and gold.
With a line of only fair calibre, the Congregationalists have resorted to an open game, in which they have proved adept between end runs, with some clever interference and both short and long passes. Oberlin has managed to sweep aside its four opponents. However, Denison knows the secret of the Oberlin success and is bending every effort to build up a defense against it. This type of attack which Coach Hughes has created however, makes opposition hard, for it means that the ends and defensive backs must decide as soon as the play starts, whether to drop back a few yards in anticipation of an aerial attack or to rush in to cut down an end run.

having the week off while the Alliance gang fought Case.

Face Easy Contests.

Neither Case nor Ohio Wesleyan should have any trouble, the Brown and White being carded to give Hiram its fifth defeat of the year, while the Wesleyanites buck against Otterbein. In the former's game, scheduled for Cleveland, Case will have its first easy contest of the season and it will serve to give Coach Fletcher a chance to try out additional strength in preparation for the Oberlin game the following week.

Against Otterbein, Ohio Wesleyan will probably present its regular line-up again and while the United Brethren have shown plenty of pluck, they have yet to show much football ability. Smart scheduling has left Wittenberg, the other undefeated team, free this Saturday, in preparation for next week's Wesleyan contest.

Western Reserve, guilty of bad football and unfortunate breaks against Oberlin, battles with Wooster at Wooster. Despite all the claim of the pioneer's strong forward line, it is doubtful whether the Red and White will be able to withstand the driving power of the Boles' machine. In all chances, Reserve will play a passing game and unless the receivers are better chosen than last week, another catastrophe is in store for Holtcamp's outfit.

At Ada, Ohio Northern should even up its standing when the Polar Bears meet their bruine compatriots. The Cincinnati bear-cats, The Noysmen showed to a wonderful advantage in the 52 game against Wesleyan, while Cincinnati has been only a disappointment. The game will probably see captain Kerchner of the Polar Bears taking the stellar role, for his open field running this year is even better than last season.

Kenyon-Ohio Toss-up.

Baldwin-Wallace's second conference contest should result in a victory over Heidelberg at Tiffin. Neither eleven is particularly strong and the choice indicates that Heidelberg appears weaker than its adversaries.

The Kenyon-Ohio university mix-up at Athens is pretty close to a toss-up, with the Green and White holding a slight edge, despite the fact that the Episcopalians have split even in their two games, while Ohio has lost both. Both teams are more effective on defense than attack, but Kenyon's showing against capital, while a victory was not very assuring.

find in Halfback Hann, who played brilliantly against the Dover eleven on Sunday. He is proving a consistent punter.
The workout Tuesday evening will start at 6 o'clock.

WOOSTER PLANS HER HOMECOMING

WOOSTER, Oct. 21.—Wooster College grads and friends will gather here next Saturday, October 25 for the sixth annual Homecoming. The Boles coached varsity will clash with the strong Western Reserve eleven.

The week-end's activities will start with a giant rally and pep meeting Friday evening in Severance Gymnasium. There will be reunions and class gathering Saturday morning. The game will start at two-thirty and the remainder of the afternoon, after the game, will be given over to an alumni reunion in Hoover Cottage.

Win or lose, there will be a bon-fire on the old athletic field at seven in the evening. At eight-fifteen the popular play by Milne, "The Dover Road" will be staged by a student cast in the City Opera House.

Coach Boles is hoping to have his full strength on the gridiron for this game with Reserve. Such has not been the case in any game to date. Hurst and Hull are now on the sidelines and it is hoped that their injuries will be healed by this next week-end.

Reserve gave Wooster's champs a battle last year and with their strong team of 1924 the Homecoming attraction will give Wooster's grads a real grid game.

WELLS VISITING BETHANY PALS

BETHANY, W. Va., Oct. 21.—Probably no graduate of Bethany college has ever had such a meteoric leap into national prominence as had Eddie Wells who graduated here last spring. Wells has returned to Bethany for a brief visit with his frat brothers and many Bethany friends and he has many interesting stories to tell of his life as a big league hurler.

This summer Wells was with the Detroit Tigers as one of its regular pitchers. His record for the season just past shows that he was in twenty-nine games altogether, both in starting and relief pitcher. He has to his credit six victories and eight defeats, a record that is hard to beat under favorable circumstances, yet one he made, not having the advantage of the spring training with the team or the first fourth of the regular season as he did not join the Tigers until the last of June.

The Cleveland team, the heaviest hitting team in the American circuit, fell prey to the big Bethany's curves every time he faced them. He also has the honor of having beaten New York and putting his team in the top place.

Wells is one of Bethany's three sport men and was one of the most popular students here during all of the four years he was a Bethany student. He expects to spend the winter in California and report next spring at the Detroit training camp in August, Ga.

"Beat Dartmouth!" Now Cry at Harvard

"Wipe out that 10-0 defeat at the hands of Dartmouth," is now the cry at Cambridge as the Harvard eleven preps for the Green game, its next big one, which will be played Oct. 25. Dartmouth defeated the Crimson by the mentioned score last season when Harvard also smarted from defeats administered by Yale and Brown. Three of Harvard's stars are shown above: Capt. Greenough, left; Edwin Gehrke, center, and Isadore Zarakov, right.

W. V. U. EXPECTS GRUDGE GAME

Will Tackle Centre College on Polo Grounds Gridiron.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 21.—With Centre college saying "we did it once and can do it again" and the West Virginia football squad determined to wipe out the defeat suffered by the 1919 Mountaineers the battle to be staged at the Polo Grounds, New York City, gives every indication of being one of the so-called "grudge" games.

Until yesterday followers of the gridiron sport here thought that Centre was "laying low" because its present squad is less formidable than Colorado's of the past few years.

They know now that they were wrong and that Centre has an ulterior motive behind all its secrecy.

West Virginia scouts have uncovered a plot similar to that planned before the 1919 game at Charleston. Centre is out to regain some of the prestige it has lost and once more the Colonels intend to use West Virginia as a means to the end. Danville, according to Mountaineer emissaries, is seething with excitement and as time for the game nears it is whispered "we'll win again."

Saturday's 55-0 victory over Geneva college was convincing proof that the Pitt defeat was caused by misplays rather than any great strength on the part of the Panther team. Geneva had previously beaten Bethany, 10-0, and held W. and J. to a 19-6 score. Since the Mountaineers did not expect to win by such a wide margin their one-sided victory is all the more acceptable.

Pat Duncan, outfielder just purchased by Washington from Cincinnati, was bought by the Reds from Birmingham a short time before Washington purchased Manager Harris from Buffalo.

Roper Drills Tiger Eleven To Stop Dangerous Running Attack of Rockne's Irish

Has Been Scouting Notre Dame in Every Game Played; Willing to Bet That His Men Will Tear Down South Bend Ball Toters.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 21.—They send a man out ahead with a red flag when they are about to shoot a blast, but Princeton is extending a courtesy of this kind to Notre Dame. There is definite and abiding danger awaiting the Irish at Princeton on Saturday. Deep down in his heart, every Tiger expects to win but this innermost conviction has been concealed behind what might be termed paradoxically, an outward show of secret gloom.

From Bill Roper on down to the third substitute end, Princeton "is slushing" everything and everybody while it tiptoes about mysterious business.

But the mutual tragedy on a train that was one hour and twenty minutes late, finally brought Roper and the writer upon Common ground and the secret, to wit, was out.

Roper expects to stop the Notre Dame running attack, in spite of the fact he is fully cognizant of the personal and combined ability of Miller, Crowley, Layden and Strubbe. He fought to be, at any rate, he has had Jack Winn scout the Irish in every game played and anytime Princeton consistently scouts a team outside the big three something is about to fliz.

"Where would you play your center, in or out of the line? He suddenly shot at me.

The reply was studiously cautious, Notre Dame, I intimated, wasn't a team to be figured in advance.

"They beat you last year without passing" he was reminded.

"They'll pass this year," he declared. "We'll break up their running attack, you mark my words. Come down and see us on Saturday. You will see a real football game."

Then he went into silence. It was broken periodically by one of Roper's eccentricities—an affirmative "yes, yes" coming out of nowhere and being all the more surprising as nothing else had been said for some minutes.

The writer rallied however and asked him what he thought he had. This, it appeared, was a long story. Boiled down Princeton it seemed had nothing more than it had in 1922 when a team of Osborne players rushed through the season to a championship. He has plenty of letter men—Dinsmore, Stout, Hills, Howard, Gates, Caldwell, Tillson, Gibson—but none of them were prominent last year, when the Tigers had an unrepresentative team.

"But they are coming" he said. "They may be the 1922 team all over again. The Notre Dame game will be our rubicon, just as the Chicago game was in 1922.

"I suppose Notre Dame is a 3 to 1 favorite" he suddenly asked in his intense way.

Not a chance, quoth the writer. Three to two would be more like it.

"I'd like to take some 3 to 2 money," he said in the manner of one who offers the chance of a lifetime. "My team is in great condition. We didn't get a bruise in the Navy game, not a bruise. That's going to count in the fourth period on Saturday."

RESERVES BOW TO SCHOLASTICS

Winners Win in Third Period, Scoring Touchdown.

On Patterson Field yesterday the East Liverpool Scholastics defeated the High School Reserves by the score of 7 to 2.

The game was closely contested, the teams appearing to be about evenly matched. The Reserves scored a safety in the second quarter, while the Scholastics went over for a touchdown in the third, Perry carrying the ball. Canne kicked goal for the point after touchdown. Canne, Bromby and Pusey were the stars for the Scholastics, while McVey, Riebel and J. Perry were the best performers for the Reserves.

Denison is facing its big task with a determination to at least equal last year's count, when the Granville outfit and the Crimson and Gold fought to a 6-6 tie. Akron, with only one victory, but that one over Wooster, meets the strong Mt. Union team at Alliance. The Mounts dropped a bitter game to Case last week and see that a victory over Akron is all that will serve to re-instate their football prestige. Parades and other observances will be held in all of the large seacoast cities. There will be meetings of chapters of the Navy League and other organizations in nearly every city and town. Lectures and speeches dealing with the Navy will be given and local services held, commemorative of the deeds of American heroes of all periods of our country's history.

Endorsed by the President and the Secretary of the Navy, Navy Day has become the support and active cooperation of a very large number of social, business and patriotic bodies which form so large a part of American life. In addition to the Navy League, the American Legion, the veterans of Foreign Wars, many Chambers of Commerce, Rotary, Kiwanis and other groups have promised all possible aid, while among the women's societies, the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Daughters of 1812 will take an active part in observing the celebration.

The observance of Navy Day originated in 1922, when it was decided that a day should be set apart for the commemoration of the deeds of American sailors in the World War and in our country's other struggles, and also for bringing before the attention of the public the value of the Navy to the nation in peace and in war.

In addition to parades and memorial ceremonies, every effort is made on Navy Day to familiarize the public throughout the country with the ships and men of the Navy. The battle fleets on both coasts are divided among the principal seaports and other naval vessels are distributed as widely as possible so that every seaport is visited by one or more ships. During the day "open house" is held at which the Navy officers and men act as hosts to all who care to visit the ships and explain in detail the workings of machinery and guns with which they are equipped.

In anticipation of this year's celebration, committees have been formed by the Navy League and other patriotic organizations for carrying on the work throughout the United States. The chairman of this committee in charge of the general plans is Commander Marion Epply, United States Naval Reserve force. Working under the guidance of the national committee are state committees, each of which in turn has the supervision of local committees in towns and cities. Heads of the state committees are:

California, Captain Frank H. Ainsworth, San Francisco; Colorado, Morton M. David, Denver; Delaware, Dare G. Hopkins, Wilmington; Florida, Lieutenant Colonel Harry C. Cliburn, Tampa; Georgia, Langdon Thomas, Augusta; Illinois, George M. Weichelt, Chicago; Iowa, N. M. Hubbard, Des Moines; Kansas, Frank E. Samuel, Topeka; Louisiana, Benjamin T. Preparations are being made for exercises of special significance in Washington, New York city, Boston, Philadelphia, Charleston (South Carolina), Galveston, Little Rock, Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Portland, Seattle and San Diego.

Windy City Anxious To Keep Flagship Of World Aviators

CHICAGO—An effort is being made to make this city the permanent home of the Chicago, flagship of Lieutenant Lowell Smith, commander of the first round-the-world airplane flight. The movement is being sponsored and pushed by a master organization of seventy-two clubs and civic organizations of this city.

Lieutenant Smith is to fly the Chicago to this city on November 8. He will be accompanied by his mechanic, Lieutenant Leslie Arnold.

When the two fliers come each of them will be presented with a $4,000 automobile as a token of the city's appreciation.

Should the city be successful in securing a Government order for the permanent housing of the big ship, the plane will be kept intact and placed on permanent exhibit. The Army and Navy Club of Chicago is very active in the movement to obtain the new historic plane. The flag ship is being shipped from Seattle, Wash., where the flight ended, officially, to Dayton, where it will be reassembled for the flight to Chicago.

Sees Food Shortage Coming With Rapid Population Climb

CHICAGO — The world will have more inhabitants than it can feed and shelter by the year 3000 A. D., if the present rate of population increase continues.

This was the statement of Frank E. Hand, supreme vice-chief ranger of the Independent Order of Foresters, in an address here.

"The population of the globe has already reached 1,849,500,000 souls," said Mr. Hand. "Scientists estimate that the number of inhabitants doubles every century. At this rate there will be 4,000,000,000 people on the planet by the year 2,000. By 3,000 A. D. the world's population will have reached the staggering total of four trillion people.

"For every four people living in Europe at the time of Napoleon's consulship there were more than nine at the outbreak of the World War. The population of the United States advanced from 3,229,214 in 1790 to 105,708,708 in 1920."

Harvest Time Conjures Hallowe'en Sprites

Corn husking and pumpkin season conjures up Hallowe'en and the mischievous sprites that have their way on that eerie night. Above is a table set for the Hallowe'en frolic with witches, bats, goblins and cats disporting on the paper cloth, and a huge Jack Horner pie to hold the favors made of twisted petals in orange and red crepe paper. Black cat cut-outs are mounted on wire and a row of pointed petals pasted to the back of each, the wire being concealed by twisted black crepe paper. These are inserted in the pie for "flowers." Upper left shows a girl's favor of powder puff pasted on pumpkin cut-out. Upper right candle holder and place card with black candle, pumpkin seal with wire arms holding candle.

MILLIONS WILL JOIN IN NAVY DAY PROGRAM

Fleet Will Keep "Open House" in Every Harbor.

OCTOBER 27 DATE

Observance Endorsed By President and Secretary Wilbur.

WASHINGTON—More than a million Americans in all parts of the United States will take part in the third annual celebration of Navy Day, Monday, October 27. Parades and other observances will be held in all of the large seacoast cities. There will be meetings of chapters of the Navy League and other organizations in nearly every city and town. Lectures and speeches dealing with the Navy will be given and local services held, commemorative of the deeds of American heroes of all periods of our country's history.

No More Constipation
Since She Made the Famous
INDICAN
Test

This woman's doctor found that she was one of the 8 people out of every 4 who are said to have Indican—the poison sign of constipation. But Mrs. Hirsch made the Indican test and that is the reason she can smile and be happy today, while two months ago she was one of the millions with bowel trouble and everybody called her a "grouch."

WHAT INDICAN DOES
Indican shows that your blood is clogged with poisons (due to constipation) that travel through your blood to every muscle and every joint. It robs you of your pep and poisons your optimism and good spirit.

Make the Indican Test
Have a urinalysis made, and if the chemist reports the presence of Indican—or if you can "feel" how poisoned you are because of sluggish bowels, bilious attacks, dizziness, headaches, bad breath, poor appetite—immediately start taking Little Liver Pills. Next have another test made and see how the Indican disappears.

EVEN OPERATION
FAILED TO HELP

So Mrs. Feist Turned To Tanlac and Got Relief.

"That Tanlac should bring back my health after everything else failed makes it seem all the more wonderful to me," says Mrs. Cyril W. Feist, 1129 Wilt street, Fort Wayne, Ind.

"I had suffered for years and finally submitted to a serious operation. Following this I remained so nervous and discouraged. After eating I suffered from indigestion which was accompanied by headaches, dizziness, coated tongue, restless sleep and that awful tired feeling. To say I was worried doesn't begin to express it.

"Tanlac surprised me with a fine appetite, good digestion and then my energy and strength came back rapidly. Four bottles did away with my troubles, increased my weight twelve pounds, brought the color of youth to my cheeks and left me enjoying splendid health for five years. I certainly have good reasons for praising Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitutes. Over 40 million bottles sold.

EVEN OPERATION FAILED TO HELP

So Mrs. Feist Turned To Tanlac and Got Relief.

"That Tanlac should bring back my health after everything else failed makes it seem all the more wonderful to me," says Mrs. Cyril W. Feist, 1129 Wilt street, Fort Wayne, Ind.

"I had suffered for years and finally submitted to a serious operation. Following this I remained so nervous and discouraged. After eating I suffered from indigestion which was accompanied by headaches, dizziness, coated tongue, restless sleep and that awful tired feeling. To say I was worried doesn't begin to express it.

"Tanlac surprised me with a fine appetite, good digestion and then my energy and strength came back rapidly. Four bottles did away with my troubles, increased my weight twelve pounds, brought the color of youth to my cheeks and left me enjoying splendid health for five years. I certainly have good reasons for praising Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitutes. Over 40 million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills recommended by the manufacturers of TANLAC.

"The Artistic Blend"

EVER TRY THIS?

THERE are still a few folks who claim that it is cheaper to pay rent than to own their own homes—but.

We wonder if they ever tried to "hock" their rent receipts when they wanted to buy a car.
